BRITISH, SOVIET PUBLICITY PAID BY GIFTS IN U. S.

Relief Funds Spent for Propaganda

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16—Generous Americans, digging into their pockets for the starving war victims of Europe, didn't know it but they contributed more than $8,000,000 for British and Russian propaganda, and "administrative expenses" in the United States during the war.

Great Britain and soviet Russia grabbed the lion's share of the collections by private war relief agencies from 1939 to June 30, 1945. Together, they picked up approximately $60,000,000 of the $254,100,000 in cash donated.

Publicity and Promotion

The British spent $4,366,000 of their $33,546,000 on publicity promotion, and administration expenses, an investigation revealed. The Russians were close behind, with $3,651,000 for similar objectives. They received a total of $25,969,000.

In addition to a quarter billion in cash, Americans contributed $224,407,000 in supplies to the more than 700 agencies at one time licensed by the government to solicit funds for the stricken in foreign lands. Some 600 groups have been weeded out by the President's war relief control board as inefficient, wasteful, and, in some cases, for simple racketeering. An even 100 remain on the accredited list.

Licenses were issued to agencies only after they pledged themselves to refrain from political activities and propaganda.

What Often Happened

Under the heading, however, of "publicity, promotion, administration, etc.," some agencies reported 50 per cent and more of their funds were being spent for those objectives. One-half of 1 per cent is considered an ideal amount for reputable relief agencies. More than 4 per cent is considered wasteful.

In 1942 there were more than 80 licensed agencies fighting for the lucrative privilege of soliciting funds for British war victims. These now have been reduced to four.

The following tabulation shows the funds collected by these four British relief agencies from 1939 to June 30, 1945:

British War Relief Society, Inc., New York City, $28,385,000; Bundles for Britain, Inc., New York City, $3,490,000; Foster Parents Plan for War Children, Inc., New York City, $1,122,000; English Speaking Union of United States, New York City, $549,000.

Bundles of "Promotion"

Bundles for Britain, Inc., spent an average of 44.5 per cent of its cash receipts for publicity, promotion, and administrative expenses from 1940 to 1945.

The British War Relief society maintained an average of 12.3 per cent during this same period for the same expenses. The expense average for the Foster Parents plan was 18.1 per cent; for the English-Speaking union 15.4 per cent.

These averages should be reduced, the agencies claim, by adding to the cash receipts the estimated value of clothing, food, and other supplies contributed.

Licensed Russian relief societies have also been reduced to four. The amounts they collected in the 1940-1945 period follow: Russian War Relief, Inc., New York City, $25,735,000; Tolstoy Foundation, Inc., New York City, $126,100; Russian Children's Welfare society, New York City, $86,700; Relief of Men of Letters and Scientists of Russia, New York City, $21,700.

The Russian war relief group spent an average of 16.5 per cent of its 25 millions for publicity, promotion, and administrative expenses during the period. The average expenses of the smaller groups ranged from 5 to 47 per cent of funds received.

UNO Split by Plan for Gag on Colonials

BY WILLIAM FULTON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 16—The united nations preparatory commission has split wide open over the question of giving populations administered by trusteeships a voice in expressing their grievances.

This was revealed today with publication of a report of a special subcommittee headed by Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese ambassador in London. China teamed up with the United Kingdom and the Union of South Africa to discard the Philippine plan for the election of representatives of dependent peoples. The report set the stage for a hot debate on the floor of the commission.

Pedro Lopez, delegate from the Philippines, demanded a week ago that the new united nations trusteeship council should in all trusteeship agreements hold an election at least once every three years in each trust territory for the purpose of choosing spokesmen for the inhabitants so ruled.

British Object

The plan was sent to the subcommittee because of objections from the British, who have 300,000,000 natives within their empire. A. Creech-Jones, parliamentary undersecretary of state in the British colonial office, told the commission the peoples of many dependent territories would not understand electoral procedure.

Dmitri Manuilsky, Ukrainian delegate, retorted that these views were not convincing. He said the introduction of universal suffrage had everywhere been opposed as impracticable, including in the Ukraine before 1917.

Minority Report

Appended to today's subcommittee report was a minority recommendation of the Philippine commonwealth proposing the election of representatives of dependent peoples.

"These spokesmen who shall not be less than three in number for each trust territory shall serve as organs for expressing to the trusteeship council in its periodic surveys the feelings, sentiments, and needs of the people in the trust territory," declared the Philippine delegation.

"The trusteeship council shall determine what kind of election is best suited for each trust territory to conform to the level of intelligence or social development of its inhabitants. The expense of holding an election shall be borne by the administering authority.

"Provided that nothing herein shall prohibit the trusteeship council from holding public hearings before which any individual, group, society, or organization may appear and freely express themselves or from making use of any other effective method or means, such as a referendum, to ascertain the expressed

Rail Officials Study Merger of 4 Stations

BY ROBERT HOWARD

Three committees of railroad officials have been created to tackle again the old question of consolidating the passenger facilities of the 16 railroads using the four stations south of the central business area.

F. G. Gurley, president of the Santa Fe railway, who is chairman of the seven man south side terminal committee, said yesterday that he expects soon to announce the appointment of a full time executive secretary to have charge of coördinating the work. Committees of engineers, headed by R. E. Dougherty, vice president of the New York Central system, a New Yorker, and of lawyers, headed by Vernon W. Foster, vice president of the Illinois Central railroad, have been named to work with Gurley's group of top officials.

Terminal to Be Considered

The scope of the job hasn't been defined officially, but it will cover the possibility of a new lake front passenger terminal and of rearrangement of the extensive system of tracks, yards, and warehouses south of the loop.

A site at Chicago's front door, facing Randolph st. just north of Grant park, has been favored as the ideal location for a passenger terminal in the most recent of the numerous station plans drafted in the last half century. Long distance Pullman and coach trains would reach the new development over the Illinois Central tracks just east of Michigan av.

Terminal consolidation proposals have failed in the past, partly because of financial difficulties and partly because some of the roads believed they had a competitive advantage in their own stations.

"Slum Railway Facilities"

"Chicago now has slum railway facilities, both in its passenger terminals and in its frate facilities," said Joshua D'Esposito, the engineer who built the Union station and who is Mayor Kelly's man in charge of doing something about the older stations south of the loop.

"The railroad situation south of Harrison st. is a civic disgrace. The stations are old and cramped and the railroad yards and terminals are traffic barricades to the south and west sides."

Station Built in 1885

The railroad presidents, in forming their own committees under Gurley, turned down D'Esposito's recommendation that they immediately organize a terminal corporation to settle corporate and financial involvements and start building.

The Santa Fe, headed by Gurley, is one of the roads running streamlined trains into the ancient Dearborn station, which was built in 1885. It is the oldest and the most crowded of the terminals. Other committee members include M. F. Stokes, president of the Chicago and Western Indiana railroad, which owns the Dearborn station, and Holly Stover, president of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois, one of its tenants.

W. A. Johnston, president of the Illinois Central, also is a member. His road's 12th st. station was built in 1892.

The two railroads which own the La Salle st. station, in operation since 1903, are represented by Gustav Metzman, president of the New York Central, and J. D. Farrington, chief operating officer of the Rock Island lines.

H. B. Voorhees, vice president of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, is the seventh committee member. He is president of the Baltimore and Ohio Chicago Terminal railroad, a subsidiary which owns the Grand Central station.

Recent proposals would not disturb the two stations west of the loop, the Union terminal, built in 1925, and the Chicago and North Western station, which has been in operation since 1911.

FLAMES DRIVE 200 INTO NEAR ZERO COLD, FOUR WOMEN INJURED

More than 200 persons were routed into near zero cold last night by a 5-11 fire which swept a four story apartment building at 4524 and 4526 Cottage Grove av., and spread to an adjoining apartment building at 4520-22 Cottage Grove av.

Four women, trapped by the flames, were injured when they leaped from windows. All were taken to Provident hospital. They are Minnie Brown, 55, possible internal injuries; Agnolia Mosley, 55; Hattie Williams, 39, and Edith Brooks, 46, all cut and bruised. Charles Watson, 29, of 5404 S. Michigan av., a visitor in the building, escaped injury in a leap from a second floor rear porch.

All of the residents of the two buildings are Negroes.

Firemen rescued an elderly couple from a third floor fire escape at 4526 Cottage Grove av. They believed that all occupants escaped. Lloyd Williams, 29, who lives on the third floor, helped spread the alarm when he noticed smoke.

The blaze, which broke out in the basement, rapidly spread thru the building to the roof. Flames leaped 50 feet in the air. A high wind showered sparks over near-by buildings. Fire Commissioner Corrigan estimated damage at $75,000.

Mercury Slips Toward −5°, a Dec. 17 Low

The mercury was expected to set an all-time record low for Dec. 17 early today. It was predicted temperatures would dip to 5 degrees below zero. Forecaster Paul Sutton said the previous low for Dec. 17 was 1.2 degrees below zero in 1914. Sutton said the highest ever recorded for the day was 55 in 1877.

There won't be much change in temperature before tomorrow afternoon. It won't be quite so cold then. The maximum yesterday afternoon was 9 above. This afternoon it will be 14 above and tomorrow 20 above. Snow is forecast for tomorrow.

Zero Forecast Tonight

The low of minus 5 degrees expected for early today will temper to a low of 2 above tonight.

The low of 1.9 degrees below zero set early yesterday didn't equal the record cold for Dec. 16, which was 8 below in 1876.

Blizzard Ties Up Buffalo

In Buffalo, N. Y., Mayor Joseph J. Kelly proclaimed a state of emergency last night as one of the worst blizzards in the city's history brought as high as 48 inches of snow in 51 hours and paralyzed transportation.

Kelly ordered all schools and most city offices closed. He suspended city court and limited use of telephones to leave all available lines open for emergency calls. He also requested citizens to remain at home and take precautions against fire.

Eastbound New York Central trains, blocked since early yesterday began moving at 8 p. m., but crowded yard conditions slowed westbound trains. The Chicago-New York Empire State express was delayed seven hours.

Tobogganing Season Opens

The cold weather had one bright side in Chicago yesterday when the tobogganing season opened officially in the forest preserves.

In the Brookfield and Lincoln park zoos, animals stayed in warmed cages. At Brookfield zoo, Robert Bean, director, said it was necessary to "induce" polar bears to leave their warm cages to pose for a Tribune photographer.

Russian Turkestan tigers, which stay in unheated cages all year round, frolicked outside and enjoyed the cold weather. Tropical animals huddled together and waited for summer.

40 ARE INJURED AS '400' ENGINE HITS COACHES

Most Victims Are Midwest GIs

More than 40 persons were injured last night when two streamliner locomotives crashed into the rear of a troop train carrying 17 officers and 284 enlisted men on the North Western tracks near Ridgeway av. and Ferdinand st. The troop train had stopped for a block signal.

Police and firemen removed 12 of the injured to Garfield Park hospital, eight to St. Anne's, six to Belmont, and four to Franklin blvd. They included Pvt. Frank Fava, 20, of 251 Evergreen av., back injuries; S. Jerry Capodice, 1024 N. Damen av., a Pullman mechanic, cuts on head, and Donald Workinger, 33, a railroad brakeman, 540 N. Lamon av. Most of the injured were from towns in Michigan.

Several of the more seriously injured later were removed to Gardiner General hospital.

Many Treated at Scene

In addition to those hospitalized, an undetermined number of persons were treated for minor injuries at the scene of the crash.

The troop train, made up of seven Pullman cars, two tourist sleepers, and two baggage cars, one fitted up as a kitchen, was en route from Camp Stoneman, near Pittsburgh, Cal., to Fort Sheridan. It left Camp Stoneman Friday morning. Most of the soldiers aboard it were Pacific veterans bound for the separation center at Fort Sheridan.

The locomotives, run as a diesel unit, were operated by Edward Doyle of Milwaukee. The engineer had just brought in the North Western railway's Peninsula 400 from Ishpeming, Mich., and was on the way to a ramp at Keeler av. Both the troop train and the diesel were westbound.

Uninjured Are Transferred

The diesel unit plowed into the rear car of the army train, causing serious damage. Equipment on six other cars was damaged so badly that the cars were out of service. None of the cars, however, was derailed. Uninjured passengers and those with only minor injuries, were transferred to coaches to continue their trip to Fort Sheridan.

The troop train was bound for a "Y" to be switched to a track leading to Fort Sheridan.

7 KILLED IN WRECK

Kollock, S. C., Dec. 16 [Special]—Two heavily loaded passenger trains, both carrying many military personnel hoping to get home for Christmas, crashed here today at 2:45 a. m., killing seven persons, sending at least 50 to hospitals, and slightly injuring scores of others.

The trains were the Seaboard Air Line railroad's Silver Meteor, southbound, and the same road's Sun Queen, which was headed north.

The crash occurred when the Silver Meteor plowed into four cars of the Sun Queen, which had failed to clear the main line when it was pulled into a siding to let the southbound train pass.

Four Sleepers Derailed

The locomotive, one coach, and four sleepers of the Silver Meteor were derailed, and four coaches and the dining car of the Sun Queen left the tracks.

Temperatures were below freezing, and injured and uninjured passengers huddled together in darkness along the right of way until ambulances could be sent from near-by towns.

Service men among those injured were taken to the Maxton air base hospital, Maxton, N. C. Others were taken to hospitals in Hamlet, N. C., and Bennettsville, S. C. Twenty-three ambulances went to the scene of the wreck and aided in transporting the injured, it was said.

Among the injured were residents of North Carolina, Florida, Ohio, New York, and the eastern seaboard. There was none from Illinois.

Penalty Fixed for Stoppages by Employes

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—H. F. Sinclair, president of the Sinclair Oil corporation, today announced settlement of a strike called by the CIO Oil Workers International union earlier this fall.

In Washington, D. C., the navy announced it will release the 11 seized properties of the company at midnight tomorrow night. It had seized the properties last Oct. 5.

The navy listed Sinclair properties at 10 locations. A spokesman said the eleventh meant the Sinclair pipeline system. The navy list included properties in and around East Chicago, Ind.

Sinclair said in his announcement that the settlement provides an 18 per cent pay increase for a basic 40 hour week to approximately 8,400 employes and contains a clause barring strikes or work stoppages. The union originally sought 30 per cent.

Provisions of Agreement

The agreement runs to May 31, 1946, and provides that the company may cancel the contract on 10 days' notice if the no strike agreement is violated, and that the union may take similar action if the corporation locks out workers, the statement said.

Sinclair added that the agreement becomes effective upon approval by Vice Adm. Ben Moreell, navy petroleum seizure officer.

Sinclair said the agreement also provided that any employe accused of violating the no strike provision shall, upon determination of guilt, be suspended by the union and discharged by the company.

Sinclair Gives Views

"We believed that the issues involved could be better settled by collective bargaining than by strikes, government seizure, or panel fact finding," the statement said. "I don't think either side can win a strike. I believe we must continue to base our relations with labor on bargaining among ourselves. Those are the reasons why we have made this settlement."

The Sinclair properties were among 53 taken over by the navy Oct. 5 under executive order of President Truman after strikes crippled production.

Charges Jews in Poland Are Badly Treated

New York, Dec. 16 [Special]—Billy Rose, theatrical producer, today recommended that the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration's 400 million dollar program for Poland be held up until the Warsaw government and Russian occupation authorities improve the treatment of Polish Jews.

Just back from a special government mission overseas during which he was permitted by the army to inspect Jewish refugee camps in Germany and Vienna, Rose told reporters that the treatment of returning Jews in Poland is "as ferocious as by the nazis."

Neither the Warsaw government nor the Russians are doing anything to prevent the Polish people from killing off and abusing the Jews, he said, adding that 400 Jewish persons were massacred in Loez on Oct. 12, 1945.

He spoke of the slaughter of Jews in Poland as "great pogroms," and estimated that within the next 30 to 60 days 100,000 Jews would leave Poland for the American zone.

Our army is cognizant of the situation in Poland and is permitting the Jewish people to return, Rose said, but pictured these refugees as without suitable tools or other implements with which to occupy their time and as not wanting to be integrated into the life of Germany, Austria or Poland.

CIO STRIKE AID PLEA TO BRITAIN STIRS CAPITAL

Likely to Affect Loan Debate

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16—The CIO auto workers' appeal to the socialist British government to intervene in the General Motors strike as the owner of a large block of General Motors stock startled official Washington.

The spectacle of the politically most powerful labor union in the United States invoking the aid of another country in the economic warfare it is waging seemed to many senators and representatives to be fraught with ominous implications and possibilities.

Asked Russian Support

The CIO already has enlisted the support of the communist Russian government which is exerted thru the American Communist party and the communist and "fellow traveler" front organizations and press. It now seeks the influence of the British government exercised thru stock ownership in American corporations. These holdings are of vast but unknown extent. In the single case of a loan of 390 million dollars obtained by the British government from the RFC the collateral furnished consisted of British owned stocks in 189 American companies now valued at 775 millions.

This new development is likely to figure prominently in the consideration by congress of the pending proposal to loan 4 billion 400 million dollars to Great Britain for 55 years at 1.62 per cent interest. Already critics such as Bernard Baruch and Jesse Jones are asking whether the loan is to be used by Britain's socialist government to undermine free enterprise in the United States.

Sent in Letter to Attlee

The appeal to the British government to take a hand in the General Motors strike was contained in a letter addressed by R. J. Thomas, president of the CIO United Auto Workers, to British Prime Minister Attlee, and made public yesterday. By way of combating the corporation's rejection of the union demand to base a wage increase on prospective profits, Thomas urged the British Labor government as "a substantial owner of General Motors shares" to "make known to the management of General Motors corporation your belief that profits are indeed the concern of the workers and the owners of any company." The British holding in General Motors is 434,000 shares.

Sen. Moore [R., Okla.], who recently presented in the senate the details of the collateral for the RFC loan, admitted he had been startled by the import of the Thomas appeal to the Socialist prime minister.

"Alarming," He Says

"It is pretty alarming," he said, "to contemplate the implications of this move by a powerful American labor union, particularly when you realize that the Socialist government of Great Britain is in a position to align itself with a group of American citizens and give potent assistance thru its ownership of shares in American corporations. The British government, as I showed in the senate recently, owns stocks of a present value of 775

FLORIDA RIDING HIGH; BIGGEST SEASON AHEAD

Boosters, on Bended Knee, Say: Stay Away!

BY GAIL COMPTON

(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

St. Petersburg, Fla., Dec. 16—Florida is preparing feverishly for what promises to be the biggest tourist season in its history. Travelers, their pockets jingling with money, are pouring into the state, and innkeepers predict a greater epidemic of spending than during the fabulous land boom era of 1925-27.

Any one harboring the thought of visiting this state for a winter vacation had better make sure they have reservations in advance. An overnighter may have a fair chance of finding a spot to stay if he isn't too particular, but the family looking for a home, apartment, hotel room, or cabin for several weeks or the "season" is out of luck.

Lineup on Cities

Here is a report on a few towns:

ST. AUGUSTINE: Hotels and motor courts doing 65 to 80 per cent capacity business. Capacity will be reached at Christmas time. Homes and apartments all rented with a rare cancellation providing an opening for the first on long waiting lists. Prices of homes and lots fairly well in line with war time standards.

ORMOND: The big, rambling Ormond hotel was scheduled to open Jan. 5, but will open a few days before Christmas to handle increase in reservations, according to Peter Schutt, manager. He predicted a tourist season greater than any in Florida's history.

DAYTONA BEACH: Trailer parks bursting their seams. Tourist courts at 80 per cent capacity. Hotels filling rapidly but still able to handle overnight guests with little trouble.

Orlando Is Crowded

ORLANDO: Town crowded and active altho it is not on the ocean. However, not much better chance of getting season accommodations here than anywhere else.

ST. PETERSBURG: Jammed with oldsters catching their second wind in life. The town hotel association is doing what it can via a letter pool to handle all requests that come to the various resorts, according to Lyle Brown, association president, but many refusals are being sent out each day.

When the press agent of a vacation town asks you on bended knee to tell the people back north not to come without reservations, you can figure conditions are very tough.

Truck Driver Is Burned to Death in Trailer

OPA RULE MAY SWEEP BUTTER OFF YULE TABLE

Blame Unequal Prices for Shortage

Inequalities between the ceiling price of butter and cost of the cream of which it is made has caused a serious shortage in butter with the possibility that there will be practically none for Christmas dinners this year, Owen M. Richards, manager of the American Dairy association, said yesterday.

He said that Chicago housewives now are able to buy only a half or a quarter of a pound of butter at a time and that in areas farther from production centers the shortage is even more severe.

Lose Money on Butter

Richards said cost of butterfat ranges from 75 to 90 cents a pound and the wholesale ceiling price of butter is 46 cents a pound. Under this situation creameries lose money on every pound of butter that they churn, he said.

Butter supplies are rapidly shrinking to the lowest point on record for this time of year. Supplies constitute only a fraction more than one month's normal consumption for the nation.

Storage Holdings Drop

Storage holdings have dropped from 165 million pounds last Nov. 1 to 109 million pounds, Richards said. This includes butter held for use by the army and navy. In November, approximately 67 million pounds of government owned butter were returned to civilian channels. An additional 20 million pounds was retained until a further check of military needs is made.

"Either the government must free butter of price controls and allow it to set its rightful place on a supply and demand basis," Richards said, "or an adjustment must be made to permit butter makers to compete for cream on an equal basis with other cream users." The alternative is for creameries to halt manufacture of butter until they can make a profit on it or at least break even, he said.

A total eclipse of the moon will occur between 6:37½ and 10:03 p. m. tomorrow when that heavenly body passes thru the earth's shadow between the sun and the moon. It will be the last lunar eclipse visible in the Chicago area until 1949.

The eclipse will attain totality at 7:40½. During the various stages the moon will take on a dull coppery color. Only the reddish rays of the sun's light will filter thru the earth's atmosphere to the moon during the eclipse.

During the eclipse the curvature of the earth will be visible in the shadow cast upon the moon.

BRITISH DESTROY JAVA TOWN FOR FIRING ON THEM

Burn Village 40 Miles from Batavia

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 16 [Reuters]—British troops today destroyed by fire a village in the Bultenzorg area, 40 miles from Batavia along the Bandoeng road, where continuous sniping had been directed against them, allied headquarters reported.

The sniping apparently followed British action in clearing the area for the establishment of a RAPWI [recovery of prisoners of war and internees] assembly center.

Indonesians in the same area cut the local telephone lines, presumably after British troops had occupied the local exchange, but the service was restored after a meeting with officials.

Bandoeng Is Calm

In Bandoeng, the combined efforts of the British and the TKR [Indonesian peace preservation force] restored calm and order. The British garrison there has been increased by the 3d Indian field regiment.

At Semarang, British troops with artillery and naval gun support have cleared up an area west of the town, while other British forces have evacuated Ambarawa, in central Java, after repeated Indonesian attacks on a big internee camp. All the liberated prisoners of war and internees and stores had been removed.

At the naval base of Soerabaja, in eastern Java, British troops continued to fan out south and west of the town. Planes recently removed 1,000 Gurkas from Batavia to Soerabaja, it was reported.

Relinquishes Fleet Command

BATAVIA, Java, Dec. 16 (AP)—Vice Adm. Arthur John Power today relinquished command of the East Indies fleet and was succeeded by Vice Adm. Clement Moody. The East Indies fleet was formed a year ago when the eastern fleet was divided into the British Pacific fleet under Adm. Bruce A. Fraser and the unit commanded by Power.

Sutan Sjahrir, prime minister of the Indonesian republic, expressed the hope today that Netherlands marines trained in the United States would not be used to fight Java nationalists.

Preparing to leave on a tour of Java to enlist support of insurgents for his government, Sjahrir said, "I have heard that Dutch marines in the United States and now on the way to the Indies probably would be used not in Java but in the outer islands.

"There was a certain amount of American help for the French cause in Indo-China in the shipment of troops. I hope America won't similarly serve Dutch interests here."

The nationalist leader said he expected to get in a few days a more detailed account of Dutch proposals to end the strife in Java.

Premier Sjahrir and President Soekarno planned to leave today or tomorrow to confer with leaders of nationalist resistance. Some of the so-called extremist leaders fighting the British have complained that the Sjahrir government was too moderate.

Deny Killing of Police

Official denial was made today that Lt. Col. H. C. G. Harding, British assistant provost marshal, said on Nov. 24 that 60 Indonesian police were shot down "in cold blood" by Dutch and Amboinese troops in an attack on the Indonesian central police station here, as reported by the Associated Press.

[Ralph Morton, Associated Press correspondent at Sydney, Australia, said he wrote the story on Nov. 24 from information supplied by Harding in an interview and "I am certain Harding made the statement."]

British Brig. MacLean, in a letter to the Netherlands Indies government information service on Dec. 12, said the statements attributed to Harding were "entirely false and a distortion of the true facts."

He asserted that Harding at a press conference actually had said 63 members of the civil police, including some inspectors, were taken prisoner by Dutch military personnel Nov. 18 and on his [Harding's] orders some of them were released. Harding today approved MacLean's letter as presenting the facts, but declined further comment.

Record Breaking Plane Crashes

The XB-42 Mixmaster plane, which crashed in Maryland yesterday, after crew had bailed out. The twin counter-rotating propellers in the tail were released before the flyers parachuted.

Three in Crew

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16 (AP)—The army's record breaking super plane, the XB-42, known as the Mixmaster, crashed at nearby Oxen Hill, Md., late today without loss of life or injury.

The crew of three officers, making a routine flight around Washington took to their parachutes and landed safely after the ship got into trouble in the air. Part of the ship dropped in a churchyard, witnesses reported, while the fuselage crashed about one mile away on a farm. Those aboard, according to the war department, were:

Lt. Col. E. J. Ascani, the pilot; Lt. Col. J. M. Laney, and Maj. C. L. Hayduk.

The war department said the mishap was attributed by the crew to an engine failure.

The Douglas army bomber, propelled by twin propellers in its tail, flew eastward across the country Dec. 8 in 5 hours 17 minutes, which the National Aeronautic association is recognizing as a record between Long Beach, Cal., and Washington.

Army Gets New Plane

Santa Monica, Cal., Dec. 16 (AP)—Douglas Aircraft company officials said tonight that another experimental speed plane, the XB-42A, had been turned out for the army.

"We are not authorized to make any further statement about the plane," a Douglas spokesman said.

French Vessel Aground; Sends Out Call for Help

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—The air sea rescue office, eastern sea frontier, reported tonight a distress call had been received from the French ship, Cap Bleu, saying it had run aground near Halifax, N. S.

AMERICANS HALT YULE FEASTS OF ALLIES IN BERLIN

BY HENRY WALES
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Germany, Dec. 16—Big shots of the four occupation powers began a series of pre-holiday dinners last week. The Americans led off with a simple meal of army rations—canned soup, frozen beef, two canned vegetables, canned fruit dessert, beer, German cognac, and coffee with tinned milk.

The British, the next host, served an excellent repast of bouillon, fresh pork, cauliflower salad, cheese, sweetmeats, mostly imported from Denmark; red and white wine, brandy, scotch, and benedictine.

Then the French imported a chef from the famous Tour-d'Argent restaurant. He served tomato bisque, pressed duck and burnt oranges, endive salad, biscuit tortoni, white Burgundy, red Bordeaux, Chateau d'Yquem with dessert, and armagnac, Calvados, champagne, and cigars.

The Russians next offered caviar in hollowed blocks of ice, cold sliced sturgeon, roast mutton, chiffonade salad and peach melba, Crimean white wine, Hungarian red wine, four varieties of vodka, and a choice of 10 French liquors.

The Americans then halted the banquets, saying it was in questionable taste to prepare exotic menus in this land of hunger and misery.

AUSTRALIA COAL MINERS TO END WALKOUT TODAY

SYDNEY, Australia, Dec. 16 (AP)—The New South Wales coal strike, in which 20,000 miners on a 14 day walkout stopped most of the industry in the state, will end tomorrow.

Approximately 3,000 of the striking miners who attended mass meetings in the fields decided by a majority of 53 votes to return to their jobs tomorrow.

After one week's work the miners will begin a 16 day Christmas holiday, however, and their production in the next five days will only be enough to maintain severely rationed electricity and gas services until operations again are in full swing. The strike started in support of steel workers who walked out of the Broken Hill proprietary works because of the discharge of a single worker. The latter strike is believed near settlement.

BLUNDER HELPED WIN SEA BATTLE, NAVY MEN SAY

Halsey Message Misread by Kinkaid

BY QUENTIN POPE

(Chicago Tribune Press Service)

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, Dec. 16—An incorrect assumption by Vice Adm. Kinkaid, as well as errors of judgment by the Japanese, played an important part in America's decisive defeat of the enemy's sea forces in the second battle of the Philippines sea, Oct. 22-27, 1944, according to information received here.

In bulletins issued soon after the battle, the navy announced that the 3d fleet of Adm. Halsey and Kinkaid's 7th had sunk or damaged 48 Nipponese warships at a cost of only six American vessels "and a few lesser craft." The battle foiled a desperate enemy attempt to stall Gen. MacArthur's invasion of the Philippines at Leyte.

New Light on Battle

Naval officers gave this unofficial version of the battle:

Hit by enemy planes from north of the Philippines, Adm. Halsey radioed Adm. Kinkaid he was pulling out to the north to deal with that prong of the Japanese force.

Kinkaid's critical error was made after he intercepted a radio message sent by Halsey to his battleships ordering them to form a separate task force. Kinkaid decided this message meant Halsey was leaving his battleships behind to protect the central Philippines.

But Halsey did not order his battleships detached and when the 3d fleet moved north to hit Jap carriers, its battleships went along.

Leaves Carriers Unprotected

In the meantime, naval officers said, Kinkaid—in the belief Halsey's big ships were still in the area and available for covering Rear Adm. Thomas L. Sprague's escort carriers—held his own battleship forces in the south.

Then one of the Japanese forces emerged from San Bernardino strait, between Luzon and Samar Islands north of Leyte, and began battering American escort carriers off the southern tip of Samar. Two of them, the St. Lo and Gambier, were sunk, as well as two destroyers and a destroyer escort.

Ready for the kill, the Japanese—to the surprise of the Americans—broke off the fighting with Sprague's force and headed back toward San Bernardino strait. This riddle is now laid by American officers to the fact that this central Japanese fleet never was intended to be more than a diversionary force. In typical Nipponese fashion, the officers said, the Japanese commander adhered to his orders even when he might have succeeded in carrying out the primary aim of the Japanese, the cutting off and smashing of Gen. MacArthur's beachhead on near-by Leyte.

Kinkaid Ready for South Force

The final error, however, was made by Nipponese intelligence concerning our dispositions, the officers said. The Japanese miscalculated our strength in the area and also our naval forces in the south.

Kinkaid, by withdrawing to the south, even tho by so doing he left Sprague's escort carriers at the mercy of the overwhelming central Japanese force, was in a position with his battleships to score the great victory of the Surigao strait.

Describing that battle, the navy report said, "The Japanese columns slowed indecisively to 12 knots, and then, as shell after shell from the American vessels found their marks, the enemy tried to reverse course and escape [back thru the strait].

"Of the two battleships, two heavy cruisers and two light, and 10 destroyers, all were sunk except one battleship, one or two cruisers and perhaps half the destroyers. The next day our aviators discovered the battleship and a fugitive cruiser, badly crippled, and finished them off."

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

Dec. 17—First Airplane Flight

ON Dec. 17, 1903, on the windy North Carolina coast near Kitty Hawk, a little knot of men watched Orville Wright, a bicycle repair man from Dayton, O., crawl onto the lower wing of the crude biplane which stood on the sands close to a workshed.

The engine roared, the plane moved forward. It gathered speed, then rose from the ground. Bobbing up and down and never reaching an altitude of more than 10 feet, it finally settled to earth about 100 feet from where it had been launched.

Wright's brother, Wilbur, also a bicycle repair man, next tried the plane and flew it 175 feet. Other flights followed on that historic day, on the last of which the machine remained aloft 59 seconds and traveled 852 feet. These were the first successful public flights by a powered, heavier than air machine carrying a man. An ancient dream had come true.

The Wrights had built their plane and even most of their engine themselves. Their epochal demonstration of 42 years ago today climaxed years of study and countless experiments with gliders.

The Kitty Hawk plane, as it finally took shape, weighed about 800 pounds and had a wing spread of 40 feet. Its 12 horse power, four cylinder engine was capable of driving it at a speed of about 30 miles per hour.

Wilbur Wright died in 1912. Orville, now 74, lives in Dayton.

U. S. TELLS JAPS THEY NEED NOT FEAR WAR TRIALS

Only Guilty Will Suffer Says Keenan

TOKYO, Dec. 16 (AP)—Following the suicide today of Prince Fumimaro Konoye, three times premier of Japan, Joseph B. Keenan, special prosecutor of war crimes, issued a statement telling the Japanese people there is nothing to fear from American justice if they are innocent.

"No person confined as a suspect need fear unless his own conscience insists on or emphasizes his own guilt," he said. "No person will be convicted unless by a judicial process which has proved its outstanding fairness for generations by and among one of the foremost of civilized nations.

"Consequently, any one who takes his life does so either as a result of an unsound mind or an unsound and unwarranted estimate as to the American judicial process in the suppression of crime."

Konoye Tells Regret

Before swallowing poison Prince Konoye had a conference with his son, Michitaka, 22, and handed him a note as he bade him good night. In the note he accepted responsibility for the war with China but said he could not stand the humiliation of an American trial. The note added:

"It is indeed a matter of great regret to have been named as a war criminal by the United States, with whom I wanted and tried to work together for a peaceful solution of Pacific affairs. I believe my real intention is even now understood and appreciated by my friends, including not a few friends in America.

"Public opinion of the world, which is at present full of the over-excitement and passion of war, misunderstanding innocence and otherwise, malicious libels and unfounded rumors, will in time restore its calmness and balances. Only then a just verdict will be given at the court of the gods."

Worried About Emperor

Konoye left written documents containing "all he wanted to say" about American-Japanese negotiations in 1941 and the tripartite pact, Michitaka said in a statement.

"He has already prepared some memoranda—one telling of the progress of conversations between Japan and America during his second and third cabinets [in 1941], and the other on the tripartite alliance. He is willing to be judged by these documents," said Michitaka.

"He tried his best to defend the Japanese system of government and national policy [which includes the emperor system]. He has always strongly thought that this is a question about which everybody as a Japanese subject should do his best, especially a member of the Konoye family."

Tomohiko Ushida, family secretary, said that at last night's dinner "the prince was greatly concerned about the future of the emperor, particularly in connection with the general policy which is being adopted by the Americans."

Impressed by Wilde

On the veranda of Konoye's home were found Gibbon's "Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire," and Oscar Wilde's "De Profundis" and "Ballad of Reading Gaol," which the former premier evidently had been reading. In "De Profundis" this passage was underlined in red:

"Society as we have constituted it will have no place for me, has none to offer; but nature, whose swift rains fall on the unjust and just alike, will have clefts in the rocks where I may hide, and secret valleys in whose silence I may weep undisturbed."

Marquis Koichi Kido, Emperor Hirohito's close adviser, entered Sugamo prison as a war crimes suspect today, declining comment on the suicide of Konoye. He got the required delousing treatment given all newcomers.

Arrest of 69 additional prisoner of war camp officials, guards, and civilian employes suspected of atrocities was ordered today. Camps in which they had served included several in Manchuria as well as 30 scattered thru Japan.

Tells Why He Resigned

The newspaper Asahi said Prince Konoye resigned as premier Oct. 16, 1941, because Gen. Hideki Tojo was demanding a specific date for starting war with the United States and he could not dissuade him. This statement was taken from Konoye's letter of resignation to Emperor Hirohito as published by Asahi. Hirohito accepted Konoye's resignation and immediately named Tojo premier.

Editorializing on Konoye's suicide, Asahi said his "weakness of character is bound to constitute a state crime because it made war easy."

The document evidently was released by Konoye's friends to prove his contention that he resigned over the war issue. Asahi's editorial, however, implied a general feeling that the resignation itself was a sign of fatal weakness.

SHANGHAI HOLDS TWO EUROPEANS FOR AIDING JAPS

SHANGHAI, Dec. 16 (AP)—Roland Sarley, former director of French municipal police at Shanghai, and L. K. Kentwell, former British attorney who renounced British citizenship, were taken into custody today by Woosung [Shanghai] garrison headquarters for investigation. Headquarters said the investigation involved alleged collaborationist activities.

Sarley's arrest was protested by the French, who contended it was in violation of pre-war treaties.

Kentwell, garrison headquarters said, once served in the legislative yuan of the puppet Nanking government.

RED OCCUPATION DISPELS CZECHS' LOVE OF RUSSIA

Looted People Fear Ruin by 'Protectors'

BY LARRY RUE
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 16—Liberation has been far from a happy event for Czechoslovakia. This little country, first to fall under the nazi yoke, found liberation itself hardly better. Even now, when Russian forces are leaving, the nation finds itself in the throes of a social revolution that in itself is painful to most of its citizens.

An employe of a leading hotel here greeted me cordially. "We thought you Americans would come here, not the Russians," he said. "We had traditional love for Russia, but that has gone now because of what the Russians have done and are doing. Some of them are all right, but when they got drunk they took our women and even now, in leaving, they take everything they want."

He and others said that if elections could be held tomorrow the Communists would suffer overwhelming defeat because of the conduct of their so-called liberators.

Fear Ruin by 'Protector'

High on a hill in the president's palace overlooking the Vltava [Moldau] river sits President Benes trying to fit Czechoslovak economic life into that of Russia so that his policy of perpetual alliance with Russia, a basic one for the country, will not be endangered from ideological differences.

"We thought at first that was all right," a Czech said, "but now we are afraid that that policy will mean we will be swallowed up by our protector."

During the German occupation many heavy industrial plants stepped up their production 200 per cent over their pre-war capacity. Most were intact, with huge stock piles of raw materials, when the country was liberated. The Russians have already removed many factories, as well as raw materials.

"Unofficial" Loss Heavy

Officially it is explained that what Russia took in the way of plants and machinery was formerly German owned and is to be charged to her reparations account. But Russia has unofficially taken a lot more, and Russian soldiers individually have helped themselves to more, which will never be recorded.

The Czechs also bore the burden of Russian occupation. They had to supply all the food the Russians consumed, and on top of this many farmers lost live stock which in no way comes under any account except loot.

There is suspicion that not all the Russian army is evacuating. "At least 30,000 are staying in Czechoslovakia," THE TRIBUNE was told. Some of these were said to be in Czech uniforms and others in civilian clothes.

Russian guards are posted around factories which are marked for export to Russia. Among these is the American owned Tel and Tel plant, which before the war was the largest radio tube producer in central Europe.

"In a way, liberation has meant for us the substitute of one fear for another," a Czech girl remarked. "Physically liberation has made us poorer, but I suppose spiritually we are richer, altho it may take us some time to discover just how far that is true."

One Disaster After Another

In a village near Prague a woman said; "First it was the Germans, then our own partisans came in and loaded 90 Germans living in this neighborhood into trucks and shot them. Then came the Russians, the first of whom behaved badly both with our women and property. These first troops were withdrawn and a new wave of Russians came in. They were better except when they got drunk, and then they were terrible."

The Czechs repeat a story of Vienna. They say the soviets in the Austrian capital have done nothing in the way of reconstruction except to erect a huge bronze statue of a Russian soldier in a big square. The monument contains the inscription, "Your Liberator." "The Austrians call it something else," the Czechs say, "'The Unknown Plunderer.' That's how we feel, too."

U. S. Unjust, but British Rule Is Good, Germans Say

FRANKFURT ON MAIN, Germany, Dec. 16 [Reuters]—Germans in the American occupied zone are showing a "strong drift toward despair," a secret report gathered for United States headquarters intelligence division says.

The report was compiled, it was specifically stated, by German agents who were neither "down at the heels informers, civilian employes of the United States forces or suppliants for favors."

The chief complaint against the Americans is said to be: "There is no justice."

The drift toward despair, the report explained, "pours itself out in hopelessness and in camouflaged hatred toward the combination of events and forces that have brought Germany to her present conditions."

Favor British Policies

Germans in the zone who have lived in or visited the British zone reflect satisfaction with occupation policies there and express the belief that German civilians under the British receive more help toward a resumption of normal life than those in the American or Russian spheres, the report asserts.

Germans in the United States zone feel that the British administration is "highly efficient and systematic" and that law and order and property rights are maintained in the British zone.

British registration and storing of shotguns and ammunition, for example, is regarded as superior to the American method of confiscation or destroying weapons suitable for hunting.

One German told the compilers: "The British promised little and gave us good government. The Americans promised a great deal and brought disorder."

Lawlessness Charged

German resentment of American ways runs a long gamut from disgust over destruction of left over food by United States forces to open despair over alleged lawlessness in the zone.

Local military government officers are said to have dictatorial ambitions and to be "trying to run their places like little kingdoms, thus atomizing Germany even beyond the four zone split."

"To the German bureaucracy is added American red tape," is a frequently heard complaint.

The Germans feel that men are arrested "without proper court proceedings and for no apparent reasons whatsoever and are not seen or heard of again." Fraternization and the resultant "demoralization of women" is another frequent charge against the Americans.

Prominent names add spice to such rumors as that American officers have good times with the wives of former SS men, for instance, and that others "take the wife of Rudolph Hess for frequent rides in the Allgaeu."

Reds Least Popular

There is also widespread criticism of the United States military government law which orders that no Nazi or party members be employed in a supervisory capacity.

Both American and British policies are preferred to the Russian.

BUST OF LENIN VANDALIZED 5TH TIME IN LONDON

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

LONDON, Dec. 16—London authorities today were considering moving the Hanover square bust of Lenin indoors for protection after it was disfigured for the fifth time last night. The nose, both ears, and left shoulder were chipped off.

The bust faces the house where Lenin lived in 1902 and 1903. The building had been destroyed by bombs with the exception of one wall bearing the London county council plaque recording Lenin's residence. The last time the bust was defaced was Aug. 28 when swastikas and "EPJ" [Perish Judah] were painted on it.

Ald. C. H. Simmons, leader of the Finsbury borough council, in whose area the bust is situated, said such vandalism did not help cement Anglo-soviet relations and it was likely the bust would be given a permanent home in a public building, probably the town hall.

IRANIAN TROOPS IN NORTH GIVE UP TO INSURGENTS

General Claims Russians Hampered Defenders

TEHRAN, Iran, Dec. 16 (AP)—An Iranian general announced today that the small central government garrison at Tabriz had surrendered to insurgents. He charged that the Azerbaijan province capital was lost because the Russians placed restrictions on the defending force.

At the same time, the Moscow radio announced that an Azerbaijan national government had been established in Tabriz, but it was not clear whether this regime was demanding complete independence of the province.

Government troops besieged at Ardebil, 110 miles northeast of Tabriz and 20 miles from the Russian border, have not been heard from in 11 days, the general said.

Two hundred more government soldiers at Rezaieh, in the rugged tribal country northwest of Tabriz, radioed yesterday that they were "completely surrounded by 3,000 Kurds, Assyrians, and Democrats" but have pledged themselves to "fight to the last man," he added.

Tells What Occurred

The general, who declined to be quoted by name, gave this unconfirmed account of the happenings in Tabriz, the second city of Iran:

The central government dispatched orders last Thursday to its garrisons in Azerbaijan province totaling less than 2,400 men telling them to fight where possible or to destroy their arms and return to Tehran.

At Tabriz, the general continued, Russian occupation troops restricted the central government garrison to its barracks and confiscated the officers' side arms.

Then "well armed Democratic party [insurgent] forces occupied higher buildings completely surrounding the barracks," he said. Radio messages from the provincial capital last night stated that officers of the capitulated garrison now were en route to Tehran.

Troops and Police Return

Approximately 1,000 Iranian troops and police, who were turned back by the Russians at Kazvin three weeks ago while en route to reenforce government garrisons in Azerbaijan, returned to their quarters in Tehran yesterday.

Describing the morale of these troops as high, the general said they would be sent to Hamadan, 180 miles southwest of Tehran. He explained that Hamadan "dominated the food routes" into Tehran.

Armored cars and companies of warmly dressed Iranian troops passed thru the streets of Tehran last night, but officers said their movement was "only routine."

Relations in Doubt

MOSCOW, Dec. 16 (AP)—Soviet dispatches from Tehran, reporting the formation of a national government in Azerbaijan province, did not make clear today the relationship between this regime and the central government at Tehran.

In reporting the selection of Tabriz as the capital of the new government, the dispatches said the opening session of the Azerbaijan parliament had adopted a charter or constitution.

The Azerbaijan assembly recently demanded the right to establish an autonomous regime within the framework of the central Iranian government.

Tass news agency said that the Democratic party leader, Jafar Pishehvari, had become the premier of the new government and had selected 11 other cabinet members.

Reader Bullard, British ambassador to Iran, and John Jernigan, second secretary of the United States legation in Tehran, arrived in Moscow yesterday from Iran. They were available for consultation with United States Secretary of State Byrnes and British Foreign Secretary Bevin who are in Moscow for meetings with Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov.

CRITIC OF 'BRASS HATS' RELEASED; 'DENIED' MEDALS

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 16 (AP)—George L. Mark of Cleveland, O., who criticized army "brass hats" in two congressional hearings while still a private, was discharged today at Camp Atterbury and announced he would enter Ohio's May primaries for either senator or congressman at large.

Relaxing in an Indianapolis hotel, Mark told a reporter his discharge papers stated he was entitled to the good conduct and World War II. victory medals, but a clerk at the camp told him "there isn't any for you." Mark said a photographer wanted to take a picture of him receiving his discharge, but was refused by the camp command.

Mark told a senate committee last September about "hardship" cases of soldier fathers who had not been discharged.

At Camp Atterbury, public relations officer Capt. Wesley Jones said not enough victory medals had been manufactured yet to make distribution to all men being discharged. He said there were plenty of good conduct medals and he did not know why Mark didn't receive one if he was entitled to it.

MOSCOW PARLEY BEGINS; ATOMIC ENERGY IS ISSUE

LONDON, Dec. 16 (AP) — United States Secretary of State Byrnes, Soviet Foreign Commissar Molotov, and British Foreign Secretary Bevin convened this afternoon in the first session of their three power conference, British dispatches from Moscow said.

Before the meeting, the dispatches reported, Bevin conferred with Reader W. Bullard, British ambassador to Iran, on the latest developments in that country.

Meet Two and a Half Hours

MOSCOW, Dec. 16 (AP)—A British embassy spokesman said the foreign ministers of the soviet union, Britain and the United States met tonight for about two and one-half hours and would meet again tomorrow afternoon. No other statement would be forthcoming on the first session of the conference, the spokesman added. The conference will take up a wide variety of international problems, including the question of control of atomic energy.

16 CROSS OCEAN IN 33 FT. SLOOP; SEEK U. S. HOME

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 16 [Special]—A sea saga in which 16 Estonians pitted courage and ingenuity against the sea was unfolded yesterday when they tied up their 33 foot sloop Erma at Little Creek, Va., after having sailed about 8,000 miles in four months.

Among the passengers, who left Stockholm for the United States early in August, were four children, two of whom had not learned to walk when their parents left Estonia in 1942 and 1943 to escape the Germans. The passengers fled Estonia in smaller groups and eventually met in the Swedish capital.

Despite many storms in the North sea, the Irish sea, and the Atlantic; food and water shortages; life in three cabins so small none of the adults could stand upright, all the refugees were in good health on arrival. They pleaded for permission to make their home in this country, adding that if they were refused they would sail to Australia or New Zealand.

Had Sextant and Chart

To navigate the Atlantic the crew had only a sextant and an aviation chart. Their cooking was done on gasoline stoves no bigger than lanterns, which frequently overturned in stormy weather. On a few occasions one of the three women would remain prone because there was no space.

The vessel, a Marconi-rigged sloop they had purchased in Sweden by pooling funds, left Stockholm on Aug. 10. In charge were two merchant seamen, Capt. Arvid Kuhn and Capt. Harry Pahlberg. With Capt. Kuhn were his wife and three children—Ulla, 3; Inga, 7, and Aimi, 10. Capt. Pahlberg had his wife and 3 year old daughter, Tuta. They did not name the others aboard the ship.

Put in at Scotland Port

They had smooth sailing until they struck the North sea, after rounding Denmark. The turbulent seas tossed the craft for several days and the children became seasick. The Erma rode out the high seas and put in at Fraserburgh, a harbor on the northeast coast of Scotland.

In Scotland, the refugees stopped only to check the Erma, take on water and what meager canned goods they could find, and then sailed for Dublin. Except for choppy weather in the Irish sea, the trip to the Irish capital was uneventful.

Winter was approaching when the Estonians left for the Madeiras Islands, west of French Morocco. Still refusing to use their auxiliary engine, the passengers were favored by calm seas and good winds all the way.

Propeller Is Lost

At Madeira, they took on one and a half tons of water and all the canned milk, fish, and vegetables they could buy. Then began the last lap. Early this month they were almost within sight of Atlantic City, when they were struck by a northeaster.

The sea anchor was tossed out and for three days the Erma drifted south. The water supply dwindled until only a quart and a half was allowed each passenger a day. The propeller was lost, and the pumps were worked constantly as she careened in moutainous seas.

Finally, off Cape Hatteras, she was spotted by a navy destroyer. The skippers were supplied with water and the necessary charts. The Erma then sailed into Norfolk, completing her journey at the army mine base, at Little Creek. According to Capt. Wallace Russell, of the army base, all passengers arrived in excellent health.

RICH HONG KONG MANSIONS NOW EMPTY SHELLS

Fine Homes Stripped by Japs and Chinese

BY JOSEPH HEARST

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

HONG KONG, Dec. 16—From the harbor that separates Hong Kong from Kowloon on a strip of China under the 99 year lease to Great Britain, mansions that dot foothills that form the beautiful background to Hong Kong appear sturdy as ever. But on closer inspection they are revealed as mere shells.

The British say the Japanese stripped hundreds of these fine homes and after the surrender destitute Chinese completed the job, ripping out even wooden flooring for firewood. Today the houses stand gaunt and empty, with weeds growing wild in the once beautiful gardens. On the highest peak are ruins of what was once the home of the British governor general.

How long it will take to restore these homes and apartments is uncertain. That phase of the restoration of Hong Kong will come after warehouses and port facilities are restored, and much will depend on when materials will be available from England and Australia.

Newspaper Shows Normalcy

Downtown Hong Kong already shows many signs of returning to normalcy despite four years of Japanese occupation during which hotels and office buildings were allowed to fall into disrepair.

A letter to the editor of the South China Morning Post yesterday complained about overcrowded conditions on the Hong Kong-Kowloon ferry and profiteering by pedal-cab drivers [bicycle driven rickshaws]. The Post also devoted a column to the necessity of controling the city's prostitutes.

Rear Adm. C. H. J. Harcourt, head of the military administration, said the first consideration when the British arrived was to provide food and aid for thousands suffering from malnutrition. There is still a great shortage of rice, which is still given free to the destitute.

Work Clearing Rubble

Harcourt said, however, that he prefers to put as many as possible of the city's 800,000 population to work rather than permit them to live off charity, with the result that thousands have been employed in clearing away the rubble.

Aiding in this work are 20,000 surrendered Japanese soldiers who live in compounds where they are safe from Chinese wrath. Harcourt would like to keep 5,000 Japs as cheap labor and repatriate the rest.

Harcourt said the price of food has been reduced 50 per cent since the first days after the surrender, but that luxury items and clothing prices are frightfully high. These prices will remain high, he predicted, until supplies begin arriving from Europe in volume. Harcourt said with evident pride that Hong Kong is not calling on UNRRA for help. "We can stand on our own feet, altho we are at the mercy of the British taxpayer," he said.

Reëstablish the Dollar

Another initial recovery move by the British was to throw out Japanese currency and reëstablish the Hong Kong dollar, with the provision that all prewar Hong Kong currency will be redeemable at full value. The Hong Kong dollar is now worth about 25 American cents.

Correspondents who flew here with Vice Adm. Barbey from Shanghai discovered Harcourt was correct about the high cost of luxuries. At a soda fountain a malted milk costs 75 cents [American] and a concoction called "pineapple boat" comes to the same. A double Scotch costs $5.

Father and Son

Maj. Samuel T. Lawton Jr. (left) showing souvenirs from Japan to his father, Maj. Gen. Lawton, after the major's return yesterday with 33d division men.

Virtually the last of the original national guard men of the 33d division who went into the army when the guard was federalized returned to Fort Sheridan for discharge early yesterday.

All men who entered with the 33d at that time are now 90 point men, army authorities explained, and the 33d—now on occupation duty in Japan—has been swept clean of 90 pointers.

Among those who came home yesterday was Maj. Samuel T. Lawton Jr., 26, son of Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, former commander of the 33d and who will command it again when it is a national guard unit.

Maj. Lawton, who won the bronze star, will return to his studies at Harvard law school after his discharge early this week.

WIND ROUTS MME. CHIANG AS MARINES PARADE

PEIPING, China, Dec. 16 (AP)—Generalissimo and Madame Chiang Kai-shek reviewed a parade of the United States 5th marine regiment near the legation quarter today and presented awards to more than a score of officers and men. Several thousand spectators caught their first glimpse of the Chiangs as the couple rode to the parade grounds.

Marine police and Chinese secret service men guarded the Chiangs as they watched the marines parade in full battle kit with tank destroyers and artillery. Thirty-six marine Corsair planes flew in formation overhead.

The north wind was so brisk that it blew one marine's helmet from his head and sent clouds of dust whirling. Chiang endured it but Mme. Chiang took refuge in the car of Maj. Gen. Keller E. Rockey, commander of the 3d amphibious corps, along with three Red Cross girls. Gen. Rockey, Brig. Gen. William A. Worton, his chief of staff, and Brig. Gen. Louis R. Jones, commanding the Peiping marine detachment, members of their staffs, and nine marine flyers were decorated by Chiang.

wishes of the population of a trust territory concerned."

Chicago Still in Running

LONDON, Dec. 16 (AP)—Boston and San Francisco appeared tonight to be in the lead among United States cities seeking to become the permanent home of the united nations organization.

Many delegations still are undecided about their choice. An American delegate said such cities as Chicago, Philadelphia, Atlantic City, and a number of others were still being considered.

Some of the delegates to the preparatory commission, including those from Australia, China, and the Philippines, have stated their preference for San Francisco, birthplace of the world peace agency.

But European delegates, losers in the hard battle for the permanent home, tended to favor selection of an east coast American city for the honor.

The committee will meet again tomorrow to begin its consideration of individual cities.

It was considered likely that the committee would take a few straw votes in an effort to narrow down the number of contenders. There are nearly 40.

Because of the press of the delegates' work before adjournment, it was considered unlikely by some of them that the question of a site could be settled by the year's end. Some thought the matter might be left to the general assembly after a subcommittee visits a number of the bidding cities.

A draft of an agreement is being prepared for the winning city. It must be signed by the host nation.

"The united nations zone is inviolable," the agreement reads.

It contains other guarantees of noninterference with united nations administration by the host nation. It provides that in peace and war the host government must guarantee adequate communications, including transportation, to and from the zone. Free visas are to be given without delay to delegates, secretariat officials and their families, as well as to accredited press, radio, and film representatives.

CHINESE RIVALS TO BEGIN NEW PEACE PARLEYS

Chungking and Reds Hail Truman Statement

CHUNGKING, China, Dec. 16 (AP)—A delegation of leading Chinese Communists arrived here today for peace talks almost simultaneously with President Truman's statement urging Chinese unity.

Both sides praised Mr. Truman's declaration of United States policy toward China, altho the communist acclaim was tinged with skepticism, and both sides looked hopefully to the arrival of Gen. Marshall, now en route, whose first assignment as United States envoy is to seek an end to internal strife.

Government quarters received Mr. Truman's statement with enthusiasm and said it agrees fully with their own present policies. They "warmly welcomed" the assertion that the United States would assist the Chiang Kai-shek government in every reasonable way.

Reds Hail Spirit of Statement

Communists applauded the "whole spirit" of the Truman declaration, and a spokesman said they particularly welcomed United States recognition of the fact China now has one party rule, whereas the Communists consistently have sought a broad coalition government.

Mr. Truman's declaration that support of China's national government would not extend to military intervention in internal strife, however, drew from the Communists only a polite: "We hope this is so."

Their spokesman added, "We hope that when Gen. Marshall arrives, this point will be effectively implemented."

Cite Conciliatory Acts

He reiterated that Communists would have no objection to nationalization of the Chinese army—eliminating the separate Chinese communist forces—if a truly representative government were formed.

As the peace conference was due to get under way before Christmas, Chungking official quarters declared that President Truman's reaffirmation of American policy dispelled disquieting apprehensions of change.

They said it was the central government's policy to broaden its base so that representative elements could participate, citing as evidence of their good intentions the creation of an all-party political council to try to settle outstanding differences with the Communists.

NAVY REPORTS RETURN OF VETS BEATS SCHEDULE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16 (AP)—The navy announced tonight that "the shipping bottleneck is being broken" and that veterans are being returned from Europe ahead of schedule.

Within the next month or two, the announcement said, there will be an "excess of transportation" for the return of eligible veterans from the Pacific.

The battleship Washington, six cruisers and eight carriers now hauling troops from Europe will be reassigned to fleet duty or placed in reserve early in January, the navy said, and eligible members of their crews demobilized.

ACCUSED NAZIS EXPECT WORST; GOERING FRETS

Schacht Alone Holds Hope of Acquittal

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 16 (AP)—Virtually all the 21 men facing the international military tribunal are resigned to death in expiation for the crimes of nazism, Nuernberg jail attendants reported today.

Of the 21 nazi leaders on trial only Hjalmar Schacht, former reichminister of economics who considers himself an abused party in these proceedings, holds to the hope of acquittal. The remainder seemed to be preparing themselves for a sentence of death.

The joviality and confidence of Reichmarshal Hermann Goering has faded. He is reported torn between fear of the future of his wife and daughter now held in an American prison camp and dread that his boastful reputation as an "honorable soldier" will be soiled for all time.

Goering's Influence Wanes

Goering's personal influence over the other prisoners is waning, and there is a falling out among the nazi defendants. Such men as former Grand Adm. Doenitz and former Hitler Youth Leader Baldur von Schirach are openly criticizing the one time German air chief.

Field Marshall Wilhelm Keitel, former chief of the high command, has told interrogators he is resigned to execution. He was described as extremely downcast by the documents produced in evidence showing that German army engineers were used to blow up Jewish hideouts during the Warsaw ghetto massacre.

"I should have spent more time in the field and learned what the individual units were doing," he was quoted as saying.

"Can't Go On Living"

Hans Fritzsche, former chief of nazi radio propaganda, whose name scarcely has been mentioned during the trial, was quoted as saying "It makes little difference whether the victors kill us or we kill ourselves afterward. We can't go on living." This sentiment was shared by other defendants, it was reported.

Most dejected of all the prisoners is Hans Frank, former nazi governor-general of Poland, and the submission of his diary in evidence did nothing to help his state of mind. As item after item in the diary noted Frank's satisfaction with "special measures" against Jews and Poles, he became more and more downcast.

"Why did I write that?" he moaned to his jailmates later.

All 21 defendants constitute unique subjects for psychiatric study. Maj. Douglas M. Kelley of San Francisco and Lt. Gustave Gilbert of New York, former teachers at the University of California and Columbia university, respectively, are completing a series of tests of the defendants to determine character traits.

Mysteriously Shot

MARY WINTERS

Mary Winters, 23, who said she came to Chicago last week from California, was placed under police guard in County hospital yesterday when she refused to explain a bullet wound in her left ankle. The woman, who wore an expensive coat, a diamond wedding ring, and had $126 in her purse, was arrested yesterday after she called at the office of Dr. Adolph A. Smolen, 3424 Sheffield av., to have the wound dressed. Miss Winters [she said she wore the wedding ring "only for effect"] told Detective Ernest Mullaney she refused to talk about the shooting because she "felt sure it was accidental."

10 NAZI SOLDIERS TRIED BY RUSSIA FOR WAR CRIMES

MOSCOW, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Russians opened their own domestic war crimes trial in Smolensk yesterday when 10 Germans were arraigned before a military tribunal and charged with atrocities in the region during the nazi occupation.

The indictment charges them with participating in the killing of more than 135,000 soviet citizens, looting and destroying industrial enterprises and houses, experimenting on Russian captives, and draining blood from children for transfusions to German soldiers.

A dispatch to Izvestia said all the accused were of low rank, acting under orders from still uncaptured Gen. von Schenkendorf, who in turn acted under directives of the German high command.

BEVIN INSISTS JEWS WILL GET PALESTINE HOME

LONDON, Dec. 16 [Reuters]—Foreign Secretary Bevin has written a member of parliament that the British government has no intention of evading its obligations under the Balfour declaration, which promised a national home in Palestine for Jews.

The member, S. S. Silverman, previously asked Bevin why his speech on the Palestine question in the house of commons on Nov. 13 omitted the word "national" in reference to a Jewish home. Silverman said the omission appeared to mean that the government regarded the question as one of the relief of individuals, rather than the Jewish people.

Bevin's reply was that "the phrase 'Jewish home' which I used was an abbreviation of the phrase 'national home for the Jewish people.' This appears in the Balfour declaration and the preamble of the mandate for Palestine."

Work to Pump 3,000 Lbs. of TNT from 'Dud' Shell

LONDON, Dec. 16 (AP)—Army engineers worked 20 feet below the earth's surface tonight pumping 3,000 pounds of TNT from a two ton nazi "dud" bomb which fell in a south Croydon lumber yard five years ago. After giving the eight and one-half foot missile an all-day bath of live steam, Lt. A. Frake and Sgt. W. S. Collins began removing the explosive charge. Meanwhile, 200 persons were evacuated from the area and all traffic was diverted.

BARTER POSTS FIGHT GERMAN BLACK MARKET

MUNICH, Germany, Dec. 16 [Reuters]—Some Bavarian girls with money to spend in the black market wear American army blankets made up into coats, and pay 20 cents or more for one cigaret. Yet a suit can be bought for $2.50 to $6.50, shoes for 30 to 90 cents, and radios for $3 to $4 at barter exchanges set up by the Germans under American auspices to combat the black market.

The prices of goods brought for exchange are kept down to discourage the black market. Such exchanges are being set up in many places. At Fuerth, near Nuernberg, about 300 customers a day trade in clothes and shoes.

The currency black market is the most disquieting. The pound note [$4.03] is fetching 600 marks against 12 marks pre-war. This is because the Germans fear the mark will crash as it did after World War I.

HANNAH ASSAILS U. OF I. OUSTER FROM VETS POST

Replaced by an Officer Still in Germany

Urbana, Ill., Dec. 16 [Special]—Prof. Harold W. Hannah, since Oct. 22 director of the division of special services for war veterans at the University of Illinois, sent a letter to the university board of trustees today protesting its refusal to confirm his one year appointment to that post.

Prof. Hannah, who was a lieutenant colonel of paratroopers during the war and had part of his right shoulder shot away in action, disclosed that the board has turned thumbs down on an appointment he received from retiring President Arthur Cutts Willard and has decided to replace him with Col. Charles R. Frederick, a former assistant dean of men.

Col. Frederick, who is still in the army and on duty in Frankfurt, Germany, is reported to be the choice of the university's president elect, Dr. George W. Stoddard, who will succeed President Willard next July.

Hannah said in his letter to the trustees that the trustees met Dec. 11 with President Elect Stoddard and "over the objection and without the recommendation of the president of the university appointed as director an officer still on active duty with the army, with whom no university official from the president down has, to my knowledge, conferred about the position."

TRUMAN VISITS WOUNDED YANKS; PRAISES MORALE

Washington, D. C., Dec. 16 (AP)—President Truman paid a pre-Christmas visit to more than 600 wounded veterans at the army and navy medical centers today and said afterward he found their morale so high that "they make you ashamed of yourself if you do any beefing."

The President left the White House at 8:30 a. m. and was gone four hours. He drove over the route without police escort.

He first visited the navy hospital in Bethesda, Md., spending an hour visiting bed and wheelchair patients. Then he motored to Walter Reed army hospital and toured several buildings for an hour and a half.

"It gives you a lift to see these boys," Mr. Truman told reporters in the main lobby at Walter Reed.

DID AMERICA ORDER THE MURDERS IN JAVA?

Ambassador Halifax of Great Britain says America shares with his country the responsibility for what is happening in Java. The natives, striving for independence from Dutch tyranny and exploitation, are being murdered by British imperial troops using lend-lease weapons. America shares the responsibility, says Halifax, because the operation was ordered by the combined chiefs of staff. "The decision was not British but Anglo-American."

A more terrible accusation against the American people, their government, and their military leaders was never uttered. Ambassador Halifax has charged us with abetting the savage repression of a movement with which every American, conscious of his own country's origins, must sympathize. The nation which freed the Filipinos because they wanted to be free is now depicted as enslaving the Javanese.

Nobody can pretend that there is anything for America in this foul enterprise unless it is degradation and the contempt of all men who value freedom. Nobody can pretend that what is going on in Java is in accord with any treaty obligation we have assumed. Nobody can pretend that the bloody suppression of the Javanese is anything but a direct violation, in letter and spirit, of the Atlantic Charter and the principles of American foreign policy laid down by President Truman as recently as his Navy day speech.

Halifax accuses the officials of our government, then, of monumental hypocrisy in addition to brutality. He has stated his charge baldly. The combined chiefs of staff is an Anglo-American agency. Its acts require unanimous consent. It is either a fact or it isn't a fact that the American representatives assented to the proposals to suppress the Javanese patriots with sword and fire.

The nation awaits the reply of our officials. The American people demand that Mr. Truman, his state department, and his army and navy spokesmen who sit with the combined chiefs of staff say whether Halifax has spoken the truth. If he has, our country will be sunk in disgrace before the eyes of every decent man and woman in this and every other country.

CONFESSION

The resignation of William D. Mitchell as counsel for the Pearl Harbor investigating committee is a confession that the plot to provide another whitewash has failed. When Mr. Mitchell announced that he and his legal staff were withdrawing, he could not conceal his pique against the four Republican minority members of the committee, whose energy and penetration frustrated his design.

Mr. Mitchell read a statement telling how he would have handled the inquiry if he had been given his way. He thought that he and his staff should choose the evidence to be submitted. He and his assistants would do the questioning. The congressional committee would sit by like stuffed dummies until it came time to "appraise" the case.

It didn't work out that way. "It has become increasingly apparent," Mr. Mitchell complained, "that some members of the committee have a different view than that entertained by counsel, either as to the scope of the inquiry or as to what is pertinent evidence. This has been reflected in extensive examination by some members far beyond what the legal staff anticipated."

Mitchell, a lifelong Democrat who is a particular crony of former Secretary of War Stimson, himself one of the principal defendants in the Pearl Harbor conspiracy, confesses that the Republicans have thrown a monkey wrench into the investigating machinery. Mitchell wanted a perfunctory examination of witnesses which wouldn't stir up embarrassment. He wanted a shallow investigation which wouldn't dig out the deeply buried secrets and which would be over in a month and a half. He wanted to protect the key figures in the Roosevelt administration and the administration's high command. He was defeated on every one of these plans.

Sen. Homer Ferguson, who distinguished himself when, as a Michigan judge, he conducted a one man grand jury investigation of corruption in state politics, has displayed the same great talent in dragging the truth of Pearl Harbor into the light. With able assistance from his three minority party associates, he has succeeded, by cross-examination alone, in digging out evidence which would have remained forever hidden if Mitchell had been allowed to carry out his commission from the New Deal.

The country for the first time has learned of the far reaching war plans adopted by Mr. Roosevelt, his state department, and his general staff which committed us to take over the whole burden of the war in Europe and the Pacific at a time when Mr. Roosevelt was feeding the public soothing syrup about his love of peace. The country has learned how the might of this nation was pledged to the redemption of British, Dutch, and Chinese interests and territories, and how the Philippines and the heroic Bataan garrison were written off as of "subsidiary" interest to the preservation of the colonial possessions of the empires.

The people have learned how much the Roosevelt inner circle knew thru intercepted and decoded Jap secret messages of Japan's war plans, pointing to attack on the day, at the hour, and at the place it occurred. America has witnessed the sorry spectacle of generals and diplomats forced into transparent evasions and faltering excuses in an attempt to make the alibis which for four years have protected them and the White House stick. For all of their pains, the defense has fallen like a house of cards.

Mitchell's job was to save Roosevelt, Stimson, Knox, Hull, Gen. Marshall, Gen. Gerow, and Gen. Bedell Smith from the consequences of having withheld the warning which could have saved the fleet at Pearl Harbor and the 3,000 men who died there. His job was to fasten the blame upon Adm. Kimmel and Gen. Short. He has failed and he is taking refuge in flight.

Sen. Barkley, the New Deal majority leader, who was put in as chairman of the committee by President Truman in order to steer the investigation away from the truth, has seen control slip from his hands. The record that has been built up despite him has convinced him that he had better abandon his chairmanship unless he wants to go down with the rest of the New Deal crew. Gen. Marshall has been hastily packed off to China, but not until he had thoroly exposed himself on the witness stand.

The Pearl Harbor investigation, it is to be hoped, will be pursued to the finish. Sen. Ferguson has promised the people the truth, no matter how long it takes, or who is affected, or who resigns. That is as the country, if not the New Deal, would have it.

THE AIRPORT HIGHWAY

We called attention in these columns yesterday to the industrial boom that is shaping up in Chicago thru the acquisition of a number of large war plants for reconversion to peace time production, and the construction of new plants or additions by other companies. Industry is demonstrating its confidence in the future of Chicago and Chicagoland, based on their unmatched transportation facilities and access to raw materials, skilled labor, and rich markets.

Factories, pay rolls, and production cannot, however, keep a city ahead of themselves. While private enterprise supports the citizens, public enterprise [supported, of course, by the taxes paid by industry and its employes] must provide the facilities that make the city convenient for people to live and work in.

A revolution in transportation is upon us. Before the war, there were fewer than 400 airplanes engaged in commercial transportation in this country. Within a few months the commercial lines will be scheduling flights for thousands of planes on scores of routes, domestic and international. These are critical days in Chicago's commercial development. Either we hold and increase our position as the world's center of transportation or we fall behind in the race and see our leadership pass to other cities, more alert and aggressive. The time is very near when almost all long-distance travel will be by plane.

At the moment the most pressing need in the development of Chicago is the prompt construction of the airport super-highway to the site of the new municipal air terminal near Park Ridge. The airport itself is equally essential, but with the acquisition of the Douglas site, few important obstacles appear to its early completion.

The Douglas airport, as it has been projected, will be the world's best, but it will have only limited utility so long as it is not readily accessible to the central business district. The airport super-highway should be finished by the time the new airport is finished. The new road should be given top priority among the city's public projects.

The prime need is for action. The route has been selected after careful consideration of alternatives. All the governments concerned—state, county, and city—are at last in agreement. The community demands full speed ahead, without any more haggling over details. The future of the city is at stake.

UNNEEDED ADVICE FOR MacARTHUR

L. J. Callaghan, a Labor member of the house of commons, has announced that if Gen. MacArthur refuses to subordinate himself to an allied control council in Japan he must go. Britain was quite content to let Gen. MacArthur and America assume the whole task of liquidating the Japs who had overrun the empire's colonial possessions. But now that the fighting is over the British are ready to move in.

The same attitude is to be discerned among the Russians, who entered the war a couple of days after the first atomic bomb fell and four days before the Japs sued for peace. The Chinese, who had been going thru the motions of fighting Japan for eight years are also waiting in the anteroom and will join in the rush to fill MacArthur's chair.

All such supernumeraries will only get in MacArthur's way in carrying out an orderly occupation policy. The general's explanation of why Japan's five cyclotrons were destroyed shows that he is already having enough trouble with the meddlers in Washington. It turns out to have been Secretary of War Patterson who gave orders for the destruction of the scientific equipment, causing much moaning among so-called liberals, who were quick to use the occasion to smear the general. If MacArthur is further burdened with a collection of Russian, British, and Chinese Pattersons, all anxious to master-mind his job, we have little doubt that Mr. Callaghan will have his wish granted. MacArthur will not waste much time in resigning.

A COOL RECEPTION

Mr. Byrnes, our secretary of state, arrived in Moscow in mid-December wearing a light topcoat.

This seems to throw a good deal of light on [a] his intellectual preparation for his job or [b] the qualities of foresight that our boss diplomat possesses.

For Napoleon and Hitler it may be said that they both expected to get to their goal before the cold weather set in. They, at least, had heard about it.

No doubt Gen. Doolittle is right in saying the battleship is obsolete. And in a few years radio—and radar—controled rockets carrying atomic bombs will make the airplane obsolete. We don't dare to speculate upon what may supplant rockets.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

HIGH LIFE IN JAPAN

The geishas of Japan dwell in tea houses, according to American sociologists who are studying folklore there, but their attentions to the customers are not limited to tea. They will also serve sake, the national hooch, on request, and then will sing the Tokyo version of "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" to strummings of the samisen until Suzuki-san, the Japanese equivalent of George F. Babbitt, gets tight and sentimental. This column's curiosity about sake, therefore, is slightly aroused.

* * *

Sake is a kind of beer made by the fermentation of rice, and its alcoholic content ranges from 11 to 14 per cent. It is served warm or hot in little cups that hold less than a liqueur glass, and its taste, while not unpleasant, has never appealed to the western palate. Walter Simmons, TRIBUNE war correspondent, sampled it in the Philippines, and calls it sickening. Our own memories of sake run back to the first decade of this century, when elaborately furnished Chinese restaurants were in fashion. We found the experiment of sipping sake out of a wren's drinking bowl undisturbing and uninteresting. The drink is common among the rice-eating populations of the far east, and on Chinese-American bills of fare it is called rice wine.

* * *

The odd thing about sake is that Japanese men-about-town will become quite illuminated and remarkably playful after a few nips, while Uncle Sam's boys say that the stuff doesn't take hold at all. They can drink it in goblets as freely as table wine, whose alcoholic power it matches, without wanting to paint the town, while the natives stand aghast at such recklessness.

* * *

The answer to the "kick" which the Japanese gets from sake and the American doesn't, says science, is a difference in racial metabolism. The Japs, nourished largely on rice, are soft touches for a shot or two of a drink to which the meat-eating Americans are almost immune. But certain Japanese diplomats, after many years of nutrition on the occidental cuisine, have become notably hardheaded whisky drinkers.

LUNCHEON LAMENTATION

I like my cup of coffee and I like it with my meal;
I say so when I order with my wistfulest appeal;
So they serve me shrimp and salad, and crackers on the side,
They bring me bread and butter (in a most unseemly pride),
They enter with the entree, descend with my dessert,
They collect the crumbs and clutter, and a tip that leaves them hurt;
And when at last I've finished, and the check has vexed my brow,
The waitress always queries, "Would you like your coffee now?"

Mrs. R. D. writes: "I have reason to believe my husband is AWOL from the navy, altho I have not been notified officially. I have received another allowance check. Can you tell me if I am entitled to cash it and use it?"

If your husband is AWOL he is not in a pay status with the navy. If his absence is for a brief period he may be tried by summary or special court martial and only a part of his pay taken as a fine, but if his absence is extended he may be tried by general court martial and could be sentenced to lose all pay and allowances, in which case even the $22 he contributes to your allowance would be lost. You then would not be entitled to cash any allowance checks and in the event you should you would be asked for a refund. So long as you have not been notified that he is absent you may cash the check, but if you have positive knowledge that he is, it would be well to retain the check until his status is determined.

Mrs. S. P. writes: "I am the wife of a soldier who was inducted last June. He is 22 and has been sent to the Pacific. We do not have any children. Can you tell me how long he will be kept in the army?"

Only the army can determine the length of time he will have to serve, but a good guess would be about two years.

Mrs. C. C. writes: "My son returned from Europe in August. He still is in the service. Is he still earning a point each month?"

Yes. Points now are computed only to Sept. 2, but a new computation date probably will be set soon.

AN INFLAMED WINDPIPE

THIS is the season for colds and, when coughing begins, there is no doubt that infection has reached the chest. Few are exempt but some individuals are especially favored and can anticipate the malady with the first indication that winter has arrived. As a rule, however, the young and the old are most susceptible.

If the windpipe is involved primarily, the condition is known as "tracheobronchitis." The pneumococci are the usual culprits but now and then other germs enter the fray to help promote their cause. Sometimes the assemblage is so great that it is difficult to isolate the ringleaders. Regardless of the variety the effect is the same, for the membranes become congested and covered with mucus. In coughing, an attempt is made to remove this film but as soon as one layer is separated, another forms. With improvement there is less oozing and more freedom from violent "barking."

In general, the onset is similar to the common cold and, after a few days, the disease spreads downward. As it infiltrates the larynx, hoarseness is noted but once beyond this point, coughing can be expected. Many complain of a heavy sensation over the chest with aching and pain in the back. The temperature may be elevated. At first the cough is dry and the sputum almost impossible to raise. Later, small bits of tough, grayish mucus appear. The episodes may be so strenuous that the muscles of the chest and abdomen feel strained and tender. Within a few days, the expectoration becomes softer and more profuse. With this, relief is experienced.

In the majority, fever subsides in less than a week and practically all signs of the illness disappear at the end of ten days. The chief danger is pneumonia, especially in oldsters and those in poor health. "Hacking" may persist longer in individuals who suffer from chronic bronchial disorders and occasionally an asthmatic attack is precipitated in allergic persons.

Bed rest is indicated, particularly when accompanied by fever. This also lessens the risk of passing on the organisms to others. Frequently the victim feels that he must work, goes to his place of employment, does very little after his arrival, and is finally sent home. As a result of his loyalty, others come down with the infection and before long many are ill and the entire business is disrupted. Had he spent a few days at home, all concerned would have been better off. Good hygiene is required in the household and this means sleeping and eating alone.

In mild cases, simple measures suffice. The diet should be light and liquids abundant. Heat to the chest is often soothing. Tickling in the throat can be minimized by sucking on hard candies or lozenges. The inhalation of steam, to which tincture of benzoin has been added, relieves the raw feeling in the chest. Cough mixtures are helpful when the paroxysms interfere with sleep. In severe cases, penicillin or the sulfonamides are of value but, more often than not, they are unnecessary.

EASILY INFECTED

Mrs. M. writes: My two sons, age 9 and 4, fester easily. The slightest scratch becomes inflamed quickly even tho I give more than the ordinary amount of first aid. They get their daily requirements of vitamins. What causes this condition?

REPLY

Some individuals lack immunity to bacteria and consequently are prone to infection. By keeping the general health up to par, the improved body resistance may help to overcome this tendency. On the other hand, overtreatment with strong preparations invites trouble. In many cases of this type, simply washing with soap and hot water and covering the lesion with a clean bandage is all that is necessary.

PROMINENT EYES

W. C. F. writes: What causes popeyes?

REPLY

Anything that causes the eyeball to enlarge or be pushed forward. The condition may be of mechanical origin such as swelling caused by inflammation or disturbances of the blood vessels. The phenomenon is also noted in goiter.

PROGRESSES QUICKLY

R. T. writes: What is hasty consumption?

REPLY

This undoubtedly refers to a rapidly developing tuberculous process.

A Rose Is a Rose Is Christmas

Having a great many things to do one snowy morning last week, we took time out and paid a social call on the Chicago flower market. If you want to get away from all this mad Christmas shopping season and emerge with a nice smell in your nostrils, we commend this to your attention. You will be more welcome, however, if you are a flower buyer. The buyers, incidentally, go about their work in a strange way. They pinch stems instead of petals, buy holly and mistletoe by the pound instead of by the piece or bunch, and apparently don't speak to any one, not even their rivals, until they have picked out everything they want.

Things certainly seem confused in the flower world. English holly, with glossy, prickly leaves and magnificent clusters of large red berries, is shipped here from Oregon and then shipped back to California. Orchids come from Florida, as well as Connecticut, Flushing, and Staten Island [of all places] and are shipped back to Georgia. Roses are packed inches deep in newspapers to protect them from frost, but crushed ice is wrapped near their stems to keep them hard and fresh. Long needle pine is kept in refrigerators, but pine cones are kept in burlap sacks. Eventually the twain will meet.

The last word in Christmas decorations, in case you care, is a spray of huckleberry leaves dyed a brilliant scarlet. Like the wax or paper flowers done so exquisitely they seem real [none of those here, tho], these are dyed so deftly they look artificial. They probably will be widely used this Christmas to atone for the shortage of eastern and southern holly. Oregon, or "fancy," holly, however, is here in its customary expensive abundance, too costly for the average wreath or window, altho the Chicago area will probably use 20 tons of it.

This may surprise you, but Chicago probably will use more red roses than anything else. Always does. [Orchids, too.] In the biggest Christmas week here on the flower growers' records, 729,000 red roses were sold, for red roses are the background of the flower industry. "To people without knowledge," the owner of one of the largest wholesale markets told us, "a flower is a rose."

No matter what you think, none of these red roses is an American Beauty, altho nine out of every 10 men entering a florist shop will order a dozen American Beauties and think he is getting them. "The smart florist," our informant told us, "will say, 'But there are none' and explain why. The other fellows say, 'Sure, we have some Beauty roses' and hand some out. You'll notice, tho, that he doesn't say American Beauty."

Of all roses ever grown commercially, the American Beauty enjoyed the greatest popularity, but it is out of production. Roses are grown from cuttings. Eventually the cutting from a cutting from a cutting runs out of virility. This happened to the American Beauty and also to the lovely yellow Claudius Pernet. A recently developed rose, however, the Rome Glory, is considered even better. It is a brilliant red and brings more money than any other rose on the market, but is a poor producer. Eighty per cent of all the commercial red roses sold in this country today are those known as the Indiana redhead [altho the listed name is Better Times]. No other can compete with it in stem, color, or production. In time it, too, will pass.

Applied science is changing the entire flower season. The bulb growers have learned to pre-cool jonquils, daffodils, and iris, and offer them now on the Christmas market for just about the first time. By the use of light, chrysanthemum growers now have moved their product, which used to be the staple flower for the Thanksgiving table, into the Christmas limelight and hope it takes. And what they are doing with carnations would take six columns to tell. Anyway, there now is a pale yellow one, lovely and delicate. . . . By the way, to make those cut poinsettias stand up, sear the end with a candle or boiling water and then add prepared flower solution to the water. They'll keep for weeks, if you're lucky.

WHAT IS UNRRA HIDING?

Rantoul, Ill., Dec. 6—On Dec. 4 the senate approved a $550,000,000 fund for the united nations relief and rehabilitation administration. This would furnish every veteran a $50 suit of clothes if it were added to his discharge bonus. There are but few of us who oppose contributing to the relief of poor, war ravaged persons. However, we would like to be certain that our contribution be used to aid these people and not those who are conniving for political advantage.

Either of two amendments offered would have aided greatly to guarantee the proper use of these funds. One would have required nations receiving the aid to admit representatives of the press and radio to report without restrictions the activities of the agency. The other, offered by Sen. Wherry, would have required nations receiving UNRRA aid to admit accredited agents or officials to investigate the agency's activities. Both of these very sensible amendments were defeated. Why? Since when has an honestly administered agency had to fear the light of a free press?

A DISGUSTED GI

SEND THEM HOME BY LST

LEYTE, P. I., Nov. 18—Over five weeks ago the 80 point men of our battalion were, as the war department put it, "On their way home." Yet not one of these men have left the replacement depot. We were patient during the first month or so after the war ended because we realized that shipping was geared for invasion and not for demobilization. Now we see no reason why all the shipping hasn't been made available for the return of troops. Ships are so numerous in Leyte gulf it's hard to see the horizon in places. Yet none of them has moved in months!

The LST group that brought us to Leyte in June is still in the harbor and has no plans of leaving. The officers on these ships say that they are capable of transporting at least 200 men comfortably and 500 in little more crowded conditions. We know there must be at least 500 LSTs in the Pacific. This number could carry, even at the lower figure of 200, in the neighborhood of 100,000 men. Figure it out for yourself.

Only 18 men left the replacement depot in over three weeks, and they had emergency furloughs. The port of Tacloban here is supposed to be the second of the only two evacuation points in the Philippines. At that rate "Golden Gate in '48" won't be just idle chatter.

ONE DOCTOR TO FOUR MEN

Camp Leonard Wood, Mo., Dec. 5—I signed up and will stay until the end of the emergency with the army so I am an impartial witness, but in behalf of my colleagues, I would like an investigation made as to the actual need of retaining medical officers in the army. In my own installation, there are now 535 patients, not over 125 acutely ill or bed patients, yet we have 115 army doctors to care for these sick. Do we still require such numbers of medical officers?

SOME FIGURES FOR MR. MURRAY

Oak Park, Ill., Dec. 11—Some weeks ago at the opening of the management-labor conference Mr. Murray of the CIO spoke of great corporations with war swollen profits and labor staggering along at "starvation wages." At that time the strike occupying public attention was UAW vs. General Motors.

Turning to pages 1470-1 of Moody's 1945 Industrial Manual, we find the G. M. annual pay roll in 1940 was $492,246,017, with average number of employes 249,386, which gives average pay of over $1,970 per employe. In 1944, annual pay roll was $1,380,032,467, which, divided by 465,617 average number of employes, gives average pay of more than $2,960 per employe. I should like figures showing how many G. M. employes starved to death during those years when their pay was far higher than country-wide average.

Annual pay roll figures out at 27.42 per cent of net sales in 1940 and 32.37 per cent of net sales in 1944. During those years sales were expanded from $1,795 million in 1940 to the phenomenal figure of $4,262 million in 1944. We are now hot on the scent of "war swollen" profits: In 1940 net income was $195.7 million, and in 1944, on the much greater volume of sales already noted, net income had actually fallen by $24.7 million to $171 million. If any group in the G. M. family is being starved, it is not the CIO.

DIRT UNDER THE RUG

Galion, O., Dec. 7—Isn't it funny that during all of this scrambling around among the brass hats and the higher-ups in Washington on Sunday morning, Dec. 7, 1941, and during the days previous when decoded messages of the Japs were being handed around, none of them even thought of the big commander in chief or sought to get his orders or opinions? Even Gen. Marshall doesn't remember whether he talked to Roosevelt or not. What a farce! To read the testimony one would think that he was nonexistent.

They are sweeping the dirt under the rug. The whole proceedings smack of desperation, but the accusing finger points directly at Roosevelt, the man who knew all the answers in war tactics, and had the navy boxed up in Pearl Harbor and slated for destruction. Let the dead and the living be branded as responsible for the worst crime against us in all our history. Let everybody demand that they lift the rug so the people can see the accumulation of guilt.

DOWER INTEREST

La Grange, Ill., Dec. 13—Several years ago my husband and I were going to separate but settled our differences. [1] He signed over to me his share of our home, making me full owner, and the transaction was recorded. At the same time I signed my share of some lots to him, making him full owner. At the present time we expect to separate and he says that I have to give him half of the property in my name, that is the house. [2] Do I? [3] What about the property he owns?

A. D.

1. Under Illinois law, each of you would continue to have a dower interest in the real estate of the other.
2. If the matter is taken to court, the property division will depend on the equities of the parties.

3 Parted in Warsaw to Meet in Nuernberg

BY HAL FOUST
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

NUERNBERG, Germany, Dec. 16—A Connecticut born woman, separated from her husband and daughter by war, will spend Christmas with them in Nuernberg thanks to Capt. Luther Hill Jr., of Des Moines, Ia.

The woman, blonde, attractive Eva Kawczynska, who has been a displaced person here since July, turned up at the international military tribunal press camp to inquire about her husband Anthony whom she married in 1927 while visiting her parents in Poland. She was referred to Capt. Hill, accommodations officer at the press camp.

Mrs. Kawczynska exhibited a letter her husband had written to her relatives in America inquiring about her and saying he was going to visit the war crimes trial at Nuernberg. Capt. Hill located the husband by telephone to Berlin.

Worked for Underground

Kawczynska, a journalist, worked for an underground paper during the German occupation of Warsaw. His wife was on a committee which hid escaped British flyers. They were separated during last year's underground uprising led by Gen. Tadeusz Komorowski [Bor].

Mrs. Kawczynska's daughter by a previous marriage, Isabella Siara, 23, had been arrested in Warsaw by the Gestapo in 1942 and sent to the infamous Oswiecim [Auschwitz] concentration camp. Bribes from friends got her transferred after eight months to a war industry textile mill where she was liberated by the American army. Since then she has been employed as a dancer by the USO.

After failing to find her husband in Warsaw Mrs. Kawczynska walked and hitch-hiked to the United States occupation boundary in Czechoslovakia but had no proof of her American citizenship.

Texan "So Sweet"

"The American sentry was so sweet," she explained. "Any American looked sweet to me at that time but this Texas boy was specially nice. He said, 'Come on, ma'm, you couldn't talk like you do unless you were born in God's country. Have a chocolate bar.'"

The only shadow in Mrs. Kawczynska's outlook for the holidays came in a letter she just received from the United States veterans administration asking her to apply for her son's insurance. It was her first news that Edward Siara, born in Bridgeport, Conn., in 1920, had been killed in the Pacific while serving with the United States marines.

PATTON WINNING PARALYSIS FIGHT, DOCTORS REPORT

HEIDELBERG, Germany, Dec. 16—Army medical specialists said tonight that Gen. Patton apparently was winning a battle to throw off the paralysis which has gripped him since his neck was broken a week ago in an automobile accident near Mannheim.

The American general slowly was regaining feeling in his numbed limbs and his broken neck was well on the way to recovery, the specialists said.

Mrs. Patton spent most of the day with her husband, while prayers were said for the general in the chapel of the 130th Station hospital.

FASCIST RALLY HEILS MOSLEY; ANGERS BRITISH

LONDON, Dec. 16 [Reuters]—The widespread public indignation arising from last night's meeting here which saw a crowd cheer and "hail" Oswald Mosley, former "fuehrer" of the British union of Fascists, has not yet drawn official reaction from the British government.

Reynolds News said today an American newspaper photographer was threatened at the meeting and his camera seized and thrown to the floor.

EX-CONSUL GOING HOME TO HELP REBUILD POLAND

Joseph Staniewicz, who resigned as Polish vice consul here last Sept. 1, announced last night that he will return to Poland around Jan. 1 to offer his services and his knowledge of the United States to the Polish government. He said he will be the first Polish career diplomat to return to Poland from this country since the war's end.

Staniewicz, who has served in this country for 20 years, said he will report to the Polish foreign office for special duty as soon as he receives word from Oscar Lange, former economics professor at the University of Chicago and now Polish ambassador here.

The former consul pointed out that Poland has been devastated and requires the aid of all its forces for reconstruction. "One can fight for his country outside its borders," Staniewicz said, "but one must be inside the country to rebuild it. I have never been a member of any Polish political party, and I shall continue my course regardless of political controversies."

Staniewicz said that Poland is anxious to rebuild and that he is convinced from private information from Poland that Russia is not interested in sovietizing the country. His wife, Blanche, whom he married here in 1937, will accompany him.

LEON BLUM HITS FRENCH POLICY OF OBSTRUCTION

PARIS, Dec. 16 [Reuters]—Leon Blum, leader of the French Socialist party, writing in his paper "Populaire" today strongly criticized the French government's German policy, declaring: "It is an error to have adopted at the central control commission an attitude of obstruction, as if we wanted to revenge our exclusion from Potsdam by obstruction at Berlin.

"It is an error to have subordinated solution of technical and administrative problems confronting all the occupying powers to the preliminary solution of the Rhenish Westphalian problem."

Gen. de Gaulle's policy, he affirmed, was oriented toward the past rather than the present or future. Blum expressed the hope that French policy would be revised.

ROBBER BEATS AND SETS FIRE TO POSTMASTER

Lumpkin, Ga., Dec. 16 (AP)—A posse with bloodhounds hunted today an unidentified man who beat and then set fire to 70 year old Postmaster J. L. Davenport at near-by Julia.

The elderly man died in a Cuthbert hospital last night where he was taken after being found aflame in the combination postoffice and grocery store.

Police Chief W. L. Maddox said a Negro passer-by, answering calls for "help," identified the assailant as a Negro. The attacker ran from the building with a bushel basket shielding his face. Trooper W. T. Beauchamp said the attacker was apparently bent on robbery.

INDIANA'S SANTA TOWN PLUNGES INTO BEST YEAR

Santa Claus, Ind., Dec. 16 (AP)—This is the busiest year Santa Claus ever had.

Postmaster Oscar Phillips says the postoffice in his little country store in this town of 250 population probably will handle more than a million letters and packages this month. A dozen extra helpers, mostly housewives, sort and postmark approximately 4,000 pieces of mail each day.

The memory of Jim Martin helps keep the Christmas spirit alive in Santa Claus.

Martin was postmaster merchant here for 30 years until his death in 1935. Letters addressed to Santa Claus in childish scrawls, once routed to the dead letter office, were forwarded to Martin.

Pilot Sees Plane Crash; Pulls Two from Oil Pit

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 16 (AP)—When an airplane plunged beneath the surface of an oil sump today, the pilot, Lawrence Catlett, 17, and his passenger, Julio Valtine, 18, were rescued thru the alertness of another pilot. Jack C. Roberts, who was taking off, saw Catlett's plane crash into a eucalyptus tree and nose over into the sump. Roberts taxied his plane to the sump and pulled Catlett and Valtine out of the oil.

MURDERS JUST ROUTINE JOB TO BOOKIE BANDITS

Lolli Describes How One of Gang Was Slain

Members of the handbook holdup ring, one of whose members shot and killed two detectives at Clark st. and Lunt av. and was himself later slain by the gang to seal his lips, made arrangements for murders with the same unconcern they might have displayed in buying a bag of potatoes, police learned yesterday.

Their information came from Renoro Lolli, one of the members of the gang, who has admitted killing Cecil [Red] Smith, another gang member, identified as the slayer of Detectives George H. Hellstern and Charles A. Brady last Sept. 2.

3 Plenty To Kill 1 Man

When Christ Perres, 27, of Joliet, Lawrence [Tiny] Mazzanars, 34, of 3402 Lyndale st., Lolli, and James J. Kelly were preparing to take Smith for a ride in the country and murder him, Lolli revealed, Kelly decided not to go along, telling his companions: "Three of you is plenty to murder one man; there's no need for me to go along."

Then, Lolli said, when guns were being distributed, it suddenly occurred to him that perhaps his fellow gang members were preparing to shoot him instead of Smith. So when he noted that the gun issued to him had a mechanical defect, he gave it to Perres and took another.

When they arrived at a lonely spot in the country, Lolli said, Perres placed the muzzle of his gun at Smith's head and pulled the trigger, but the gun failed to fire. Then, Lolli said, at Perres' order, he shot and killed Smith.

Suggests Another Killing

While Mazzanars, the third member of the execution party, was digging a shallow grave in a cornfield, Lolli said Perres turned to him and said, "Come on, let's knock off that ——— ——— too."

"No," Lolli said he replied, "one murder is enough for tonight."

"Give me your gun and I'll give it to him," Lolli said Perres told him. But Lolli said he refused to relinquish his gun, apparently being uncertain of Perres' intentions.

Slain in Gun Battle

Perres subsequently was shot and killed in a gun battle with police on Dec. 7.

Later yesterday, Mazzanars, Kelly, Lolli, and Andrew Norley, 49, of 1711 N. Wells st., appeared at a police showup, but none was identified by holdup victims. Norley was arrested when he appeared at Smith's home to collect Smith's clothing. He told police Smith owed him some money and he wanted to hold the clothing for security.

EX-CONVICT STEALS A KISS IN TAVERN; FOUND SLAIN IN SNOW

Mrs. Jacqueline Brandenberg, 22, an Indian, of Clearing, and Leo A. Gaides, 32, of 3243 Parnell av., were held by Chicago av. police for questioning yesterday regarding the slaying of Jay B. Boulton Jr., 45, an ex-convict, who was found stabbed to death in a snow drift in front of 69 W. Huron st.

Jay B. Boulton Jr.

Sgt. William Walsh said the two men and the woman were drinking early yesterday in the Shanty Inn, 716 N. Clark st., and the men quarreled over some lipstick which Gaides discovered on Boulton's handkerchief. Mrs. Brandenberg said she had let Boulton kiss her when Gaides was not looking.

Boulton's body was found a few hours after the three left the tavern. Gaides, a tool maker, was arrested in a room at 8 E. Grand av., and denied knowledge of the slaying. Boulton's father, of 6921 Normal av., said his son had not been living at home. Boulton was sentenced to Joliet prison in April, 1931, for robbery; was paroled in July, 1937; and sentenced again in August, 1939, for burglary, and was discharged last Nov. 17.

BERWYN SCHOOL HEAD WILL FACE PUPILS' CHARGES

John K. White, 47, principal of Pershing elementary school in Berwyn, will go to trial this morning in Criminal court on charges of contributing to the delinquency of three 12 year old pupils. White, who will be represented by Atty. Frank Matousek, has pleaded not guilty to the indictments. Assistant State's Atty. William Brumlik will present the state's case before Judge Leonard Reid. The pupils charged that White had fondled them and kissed them and asked them questions about sex matters. White has been married 20 years and has a 4 year old child.

SEEK ANNOYER IN SLAYING OF FORMER WAVE

A man who telephoned two young women living in the hotel at 839 Sheridan rd. to attempt to induce them to pose in the nude, was sought yesterday by police investigating the slaying of Miss Frances Brown, 33, attractive former wave, whose nude body was found last Monday in her apartment in the Pine Crest hotel, 3941 Pine Grove av. The two hotels are within two blocks of each other.

The two women in Sheridan rd., who are cousins rooming together, said the male caller, whom they did not know, phoned them last Thursday and again at 6 a. m. yesterday. He called them by their names, and said he wanted them to pose for sketches. He said he was calling from the Union station.

Both women are photographers, one employed at a studio and the other doing free lance work. They said the caller was obscene and suggestive. Police have been seeking this type of suspect as the murderer of Miss Brown, who was shot and stabbed.

POLICE QUIZ SHY PIANO TEACHER IN LANGE DEATH

Donald Levine, 18, of 4875 N. Paulina st., shy mannered student at the American Conservatory of Music who used to give piano lessons to Lawrence A. Lange, 36, found slain Friday night in his perfumed apartment at 3148 Wilson av., was questioned for nearly an hour yesterday by Capt. Thomas Kelly of the Albany Park police.

Later Capt. Kelly took Levine to the slain man's apartment for further questioning.

Levine denied that he had been in the apartment on Friday, the day of the slaying. He said he last saw Lange a week before the murder.

Levine was not held. Capt. Kelly released four other men who had been held over night for questioning. They are John Matthews; his brother, James, and Marvin Matthews, all of 1126 E. 55th st., and Harold Collins, 34, of the Y. M. C. A. hotel, 1400 E. 53d st.

ROMAN STORES HAVE LUXURIES —FOR A PRICE

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

ROME, Dec. 6 [By Air Mail]—The Via dei Condotti is for luxury shoppers the Roman equivalent of Chicago's Michigan av. or New York's 5th av. It is now a heartbreak street which has for sale so many things that are desirable, but priced far beyond the ordinary purse.

It is a narrow lane leading from the Piazza di Spagna, beneath the historic Spanish steps, and it is bordered by some of the handsomest and best stocked establishments in Europe. The windows display jewels of the first magnitude, gold and silver bracelets and boxes, crystal and Venetian glass, intricately tooled leather, and sheer feminine undergarments.

How Prices Rose

When the allies first came to Rome in June, 1944, prices were reasonable on the Via del Condotti. A leather purse that would cost more than $100 in Chicago or New York could be had for $35; an 86 piece set of the finest Venetian glass was about $90. Today a similar purse is tagged at $250 [at the official rate of exchange of 100 lire to the dollar] and a comparable glass ensemble costs $800.

Naturally, at prices like that, the Via del Condotti merchants don't do much business—their only customers are some Italians who have accumulated packages of lire in black market transactions and the occasional GI who has cleaned out a crap game, knows that army regulations will prevent him from sending all his winnings home, and is willing to splurge.

They Go for Dollars

The shopkeepers don't push their wares and are interested only in selling enough to defray current expenses. They feel that their merchandise will always be good and they can't say that much for the lira. Should a GI, however, come in with dollars, he will find the merchant eager to sell and the marked prices cut about two thirds. But dealings in dollars are illegal both under American military and Italian civil laws.

Franceschini's, one of the most famous leather shops in the world, exhibits beautiful purses and saddlery, the latter being in the $600 to $1,000 bracket. And a soldier, viewing one of those saddles with longing and knowing it was far beyond his means, said what epitomizes the American's reaction to the Via.

"If I bought that saddle," he moaned, "I wouldn't be able to afford hiring the horse to go with it."

UNION SWINGS WAGE GUNS ON NEW AUTO FIRM

Kaiser-Frazer to Parley with CIO Today

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 16 (AP)—A newcomer to the automotive field, Kaiser-Frazer corporation, tomorrow comes under the guns of the CIO United Auto workers, already loaded with a 30 per cent wage demand and leveled at the industry's big three.

Negotiating sessions with Kaiser-Frazer will open at the same time the union resumes conferences with Ford Motor company and strike bound General Motors corporation.

Kaiser-Frazer has not made public its wage policy, but a spokesman has said the firm will press the UAW-CIO for a new type company security agreement.

Unions Attack Plan

Such an agreement already has been offered Ford, altho the union has threatened to withdraw it unless the company offers a specific wage increase.

G. M. unions in Flint, Mich., have condemned the security plan for Ford as a "treacherous blow" to the labor movement, and asked that it be withdrawn.

The security plan offered to Ford by the union Monday would permit the discharge and fining of unauthorized strikers. Countering a company proposal of a $5 a day assessment against the union for each worker taking part in an unauthorized walkout the UAW proposed that each wildcat striker be fined $3 a day for his first offense and $5 for his second.

At conferences last week Ford asked a 60 to 90 day delay on the wage matter, charging that suppliers' strikes have made future auto production an uncertain matter.

Wage Proposal Expected

Later a jointly satisfactory meeting led observers to predict, without confirmation, that the company may have a wage proposal ready for the union.

General Motors, with 200,000 idle employes, will take up its negotiating burden tomorrow also.

Walter P. Reuther, UAW-CIO vice president and leader of the G. M. negotiators, will ask the company to admit the press to their conferences on pain of having the UAW-CIO release verbatim transcripts of the parleys.

Tomorrow's meeting, latest in a long series of fruitless and often bitter exchanges, is expected to produce little in advance of government fact finding hearings in Washington later in the week.

Trouble Brews at Flint

Trouble brewed over the weekend at Flint where the union ordered its picket lines "held fast" against any effort by office workers to enter the AC spark plug division tomorrow morning.

The company, which has gone to court with the same problem in other states, has directed clerical workers to return to work.

Negotiations with Chrysler corporation, third member of the big three, have been at a standstill since the union's contract expired two weeks ago.

Police to Intervene

Flint, Mich., Dec. 16 (AP)—Police officials here tonight said they intend to sustain any attempt by clerical employes of the A C spark plug division of General Motors corporation to cross CIO United Auto workers picket lines en route to work tomorrow morning.

Police Inspector Robert Demaroff said his men will be instructed to assist the office employes if they desire to reach their desks in the strike bound plant.

FORD PLEADS FOR SUPPLIES TO AID OUTPUT

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 16 (AP)—Henry Ford II. said today that, thru no fault of his production employes, the Ford Motor company is "limping instead of galloping along" as a result of parts shortages.

As president of the company, he made a public appeal to suppliers across the nation to speed supplies to his Detroit factories, subject only to quality and price levels.

He said "an easy way out" would be to ask the government to raise OPA ceiling prices, but that the company hasn't time for such a procedure "even if it were the right way to get the situation straightened out."

Ford in his statement asserted that his company is "completely cut off by 14 major suppliers, while from many others we are getting a mere trickle of parts and materials." He said suppliers have told him they have canceled Ford contracts because price ceilings on their products result in losses, or because they are losing employes thru inability to raise wages.

To Vote on Settlement Plan

WINDSOR, Ont., Dec. 16 (AP)—Striking CIO United Auto Workers of the Ford of Canada plant today scheduled a referendum vote for Tuesday and Wednesday on a modified Canadian government plan to end a strike that began Sept. 12. The strike idled about 10,000 Ford employes. The government plan calls for a return to work and a limited period of negotiations followed by arbitration.

Ominous Implications of Letter Noted million dollars in 189 American companies. There are 83 listed and 66 unlisted stocks in addition to British owned shares in 40 American insurance companies."

"It is certainly out of place," said Rep. Reed [R., Ill.] "to appeal to an official of a foreign government to settle a purely, domestic American issue. I can't help but think of this situation in reverse. What would be the feeling of the British people if their government asked President Truman to intervene in a purely British issue?"

"This is fantastic," said Rep. Springer [R., Ind.], "it is indeed strange that Prime Minister Attlee should be asked to take an interest in settling a matter that concerns only the United States."

Recalls 1941 Deal

Sen. Moore explained that in 1941 the British government, in order to get dollar exchange, expropriated British owned stocks in American companies paying owners therefor in sterling.

"In this way," said the senator, "the British government became a substantial or controlling owner of the stock of a large number of American companies. These stocks were deposited with the RFC as security for a 425 million dollar loan, only 390 millions of which, however, were disbursed. The net balance due after crediting accumulated reserve income is 243 millions. Thus the British government has a dollar equity in these securities of more than half a billion dollars.

In addition to the 434,000 General Motors shares the British holdings include: American Thread, 1,197,375; Distillers Co., Ltd., 850,250; Shell Union Oil, 900,000; Standard Oil of Indiana, 315,000; Radio Corporation of America, 177,000; Dividend Shares, Inc., 3,655,550; Celanese corporation, 335,096; Standard Oil of New Jersey, 198,002; Amerada Petroleum corporation, 133,000; American Rolling Mills, 133,000; Socony-Vacuum Oil company., 130,000; Standard Brands, 170,000; F. W. Woolworth company, 247,000; United States Potash, 162,480; American Association, 151,844; Dunlop Tire and Rubber company, 197,334; J. and P. Coates [R. WELSH FORBID ENGLISH SONGS AT EISTEDDFOD

COLWYN BAY, Wales, Dec. 16 [Reuters]—A ban on English for judges' comments in the children's section at the National Eisteddfod [literary and music festival] of Wales in 1947, was decided upon today by the executive committee. It was also resolved to confine all musical items in the children's section to Welsh compositions.

Disagreement came from the chairman of the music committee, who supported a recommendation for inclusion of English works. "Some modern Welsh compositions are enough to break one's heart," he said in urging that English works be included.

MOVES TO GIVE WORLD U. S. NEWS AT 1⅓c A WORD

Mackay Radio Asks FCC to Approve Rate

New York, Dec. 16 [Special]—Warren Lee Pierson, president of the American Cable & Radio corporation, announced today that an application had been filed by the Mackay Radio and Telegraph company, an ACR subsidiary, with the federal communications commission for a tariff schedule that would reduce the cost of the world-wide transmission of American news to a level of about one-third cent a word.

This move was described by Pierson as the first major step toward making American news available for world distribution at the lowest rates in communications history.

Service to Remote Areas

He said the new service contemplated the use of Mackay radio's high power transmitters in New York and San Francisco, Cal., to "blanket the far corners of the world with news for simultaneous reception at authorized receiving points."

The service, predicated upon daily use for eight or more hours of the 24 on an annual basis, would make possible the transmission of news to multiple points at the lowest rates in the world, Pierson added.

Erects Booster Stations

A feature of the proposed service is the utilization of relay, or booster, stations in the European and Pacific areas to assure continuous radio reception. Mackay radio is erecting relay stations at foreign points that it says will be capable of providing instantaneous relay by automatic devices of signals from the east or west coast.

The American Cable and Radio corporation is a subsidiary of the International Telephone and Telegraph corporation.

Chinese Will Speak Before Chicago Group

BY JUDITH CASS

NOT every gathering during the next three weeks will be exclusively to fete a debutante, tho events for the buds of the season come close to crowding all other activities into the background. On the afternoon of Dec. 27 Mrs. John Alden Carpenter will open her Lake Shore dr. apartment for a meeting of the American Friends of China, which will be addressed by T. Z. Koo, secretary of the World Students Christian federation.

Mr. Koo spoke 10 years ago before the Chicago Council on Foreign Relations, and it is recalled by the Friends of China that he received a standing tribute at the end of his lecture. He was advisor to the Chinese delegation at the San Francisco conference last June. Pouring tea following his talk next week will be Mrs. Charles H. Swift, Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, Mrs. George T. Langhorne, and Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr.

Mrs. Edward L. Hasler, an active member of the Friends, yesterday welcomed home her son, Lt. Wyndham Hasler, from what his wife and mother hope was his last tour of sea duty. He has plenty of points for a discharge, if he can obtain it.

Mrs. Crane will give a tea on Friday afternoon to welcome home her son, Cornelius Crane, and son-in-law and daughter, Prince and Princess Sarge Belosselsky. It will be their first Christmas reunion in Chicago in several years. The Belosselskys are arriving on Wednesday from New York, bringing with them their little daughter, Marina, and Princess Belosselsky's son, Christopher Robinson. The children will stay with their grandmother when Mr. Crane and his sister and brother-in-law leave on Dec. 28 to fly to Mexico, Guatemala, and Yucatan on a holiday.

Other Holiday Gatherings

Mr. and Mrs. Wade Fetzer Jr. will give a small cocktail party on Sunday in their Winnetka home for her sister, Mrs. Robert Burns, and Mr. Burns, of Westwood Hills, Cal., who are arriving with their two children Thursday to spend the holidays with Mrs. Burns' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph E. Otis.

Here for the Christmas season are Mrs. Winthrop M. Robinson and her three children, who arrived recently to spend the month with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson LeRoy Buck in Evanston. Mr. Robinson will join his family for Christmas. He is in Phoenix, Ariz., where the Robinsons moved last summer. They will return here in the spring. Mr. and Mrs. Buck will entertain for their son-in-law and daughter on Sunday from 5 to 7.

An open house which Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Galloway will give from 4 to 8 p. m. on Dec. 21 in their home in Evanston will be a welcome home for Mrs. Galloway's brother, William L. Donaldson, and her brother-in-law, Alan Wilson Jr. Mr. Donaldson, a former captain in the army, is on terminal leave after almost four years of service in Europe. Mr. Wilson, who recently returned from two years of European service as a sergeant in the army, is at home in Evanston with his wife, the former Constance Donaldson. Another brother, Lt. Comdr. Lincoln Bruce Donaldson, who is in Seattle, Wash., with the medical corps of the navy, probably will not be here in time for the party, altho he expects to return to Evanston within the next few weeks.

Birth Announcement

Mr. and Mrs. James C. Hutchins count as their best Christmas present their seventh grandchild, the baby daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony M. Ryerson [Margaret Hutchins]. She was born on Friday in Michael Reese hospital. The baby, who has not been named, and her sister, Sheila, also are granddaughters of Mrs. Donald M. Ryerson. The children's father returned to Lake Forest in October from Florida, where he had been stationed as a sergeant in the army air forces. He is out of the service.

Debut News

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas P. Street, who arrived by plane on Saturday from Winter Haven, Fla., and Mrs. Street's daughter, Miss Ruth Sheldon Lee, will receive from 4 to 7 p. m. today in the Fortnightly club at a tea which will be Miss Lee's introduction to adult society. The bud, who will wear a pale blue brocaded gown and pale yellow orchids, will have as her assistants Miss Mary Ann Smith of Minneapolis, Minn.; and the Misses Joan Burgess, Nancy Madlener, Nancy Underwood, Ellen Ryerson, and Elizabeth De Long. Also here for the festivities is one of the debutante's older sisters, Miss Mary Alden Lee, who arrived yesterday from her studies in the Harvard school of architecture. Their other sister, Mrs. Edmund W. Peakes, is in Winter Haven awaiting Ensign Peakes' return from the South Pacific.

The debutante and her assistants and their beaux will stay on at the Fortnightly for a small supper dance after the tea. The Streets will return to Florida tomorrow, but Miss Lee will spend the remainder of the holidays with her cousin, Mrs. O. L. Stevens, at the Canterbury Court apartments, before returning to her classes at Vassar college.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

Survey "Tells All"

The Women's Advertising club of Chicago has made a survey of the members that "tells all." Girls contemplating a career in advertising may be interested in some of the facts these successful women discovered about themselves.

Looking in the mirror, the composite Ad club member is five feet four and half inches tall, weighs 130 pounds, rates 37 candles on her birthday cake, and earns annually approximately $4,800. She has been with her firm a bit more than four years and has held her present title about three and a half years. She intends to continue in her position. She is an employe rather than owner or part owner.

Salaries of the Ad club members have taken a leap forward. In 1939 annual earnings were in the $2,000 to $3,000 bracket. In 1944, most of the members reported salaries in the $5,000 to $8,000 bracket.

When questioned about future plans, 76. 4 per cent of the members said they want to continue in their present jobs. Only 5.6 per cent plan to retire. On the "eternal question" about a third reported they are married, not quite a half are single; the rest are widowed or divorced. But of this group 55.6 per cent answered "Yes" to the question "Do you manage a home in addition to your job."

How much does education count? Twenty-five per cent of the members hold bachelors degrees and 12.5 per cent hold masters degrees, while 34.7 per cent have had some college training, and others attended business or art school.

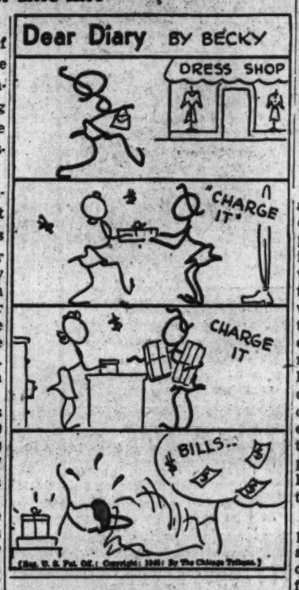
SANTA'S HELPER

Att: Real Word Expert

After an intense research project I've concluded that the two longest words in the English language which can be spelled the same both backward or forward are "reviver" and "repaper."

JOHN FAHRNER, JR.



Our Political Campaign

In the race for the vice presidency we are returning to our original campaign slogan, "A man for every WCG". My WCG Board of Strategy [on hearing of Nosey Parker's intention to promise two men for every WCG] overruled my better judgment, causing me to raise the promise to three men. [I have a strong-willed board—two are red-heads.]

It now occurs to me that unless drastic changes are made in our immigration laws—which seems to be the reason our boys can't get back home—I'd not be able to carry out my campaign promises if elected. And under these circumstances I'd have no desire to be a servant of the people. BILL GLOER

Wish 'Twould Happen to Us

From Ellen Lochen comes the story of a woman on a shopping tour who stopped in a State st. store to ask a clerk to show her some hosiery. The clerk whispered, very hush hush, you know, "Would you like nylons?" The woman replied, "No, thank you." The clerk was sure she could not have understood so repeated. "I said nylons." "Never wear them," said the obdurate lady.

Chilly Few Hear Two Opera Troupes Perform Creditably

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG

The little opera companies were at it again yesterday afternoon and evening, with the Citizens Opera presenting "The Bartered Bride" in English in the Ashland Boulevard auditorium at a matinee and the Universal Opera rehearsing the woes of "Lucia di Lammermoor" in the Eighth Street theater in the evening. Each group found financial reason to regret its temerity. The little afternoon audience that huddled in overcoats and furs to ward off the icy drafts scarcely filled an eighth of the huge Ashland auditorium; the evening audience was proportionately larger but failed to leave enough cash at the box office to avoid a sizable deficit.

The Citizens Opera announced its project as streamlined opera for school children, but we could discover nothing whatsoever missing from the first two acts of the Smetana comedy, and the adults on the audience outnumbered the youngsters by about 10 to one. In a proper hall, however, one in which every musical sound did not bounce back at least six times, the performance would have displayed decided merits.

To the eye, and to the ear, as far as it could distinguish the original tones in the tidal wave of echoes, there was some adroit comedy, some good singing and direction, and enough excellent English diction to provide meat for an argument. Jarmila Novotna was the bright star of the occasion, looking charming, acting deftly, and since reverberation told the same story, apparently in exceptionally good voice.

Surrounding her was a cast of well drilled competence. Herman Flieth, a tenor apparently new to these observances, sang a likable Hans, with smooth and agreeable voice when the orchestra permitted him to be heard, and definitely superior diction. Alois Bragagnola repeated from an earlier performance his expert characterization of the marriage broker, John Toms was an adequate but not particularly comic Wenzel, and Harold Willer, Ilma Bayle, Henry Matysiak and Julia Sturge provided good sketches of scheming parents. Jerzy Bojanowski conducted an orchestra that was always too loud but probably couldn't help itself, the horrendous acoustics defeating every effort to play otherwise.

"Lucia di Lammermoor" in the evening likewise had a bright star in Enrico Clausi, a tenor who has his ups and downs, but was definitely up this time. It also had in June Browne, in the title role, a coloratura who may some day prove to be a comet, when she learns to inject some warmth into her present icily efficient vocalization, and when she realizes that a pretty girl should never, under any circumstances, appear in costumes that seem to have come out of an old trunk in somebody's attic. Otto Siatinsky's baritone had dramatic vigor and agreeable resonance, but he must be told that semaphore movements of the right arm do not constitute acting. And there was another good voice, that of Wilson Jones as Raymond, in a performance that was streamlined to the extent that it omitted the harp solo in the second scene. The harpist just got mad and went home, because she didn't like the conductor's tempi. We are sympathetic on that point.

Centers Plan Lively Yule for Soldiers Unable to Get Home

Uniformed men and women in the Chicago vicinity, who are unable to go to distant homes for the holidays, still may expect to have a merry Christmas if they visit the Chicago service men's centers. With long week-end passes bringing thousands of uniformed men and women here from midwest army and navy posts, provision is being made to entertain 50,000 in the centers at 176 W. Washington st., 430 S. Michigan av., and 50 E. 49th st.

Thru generosity of the citizens of Chicago and suburbs, the centers' first peace time Christmas calls for continuous 13 hour serving of roast turkey dinner, a white whiskered Santa with gifts for all comers, strolling carollers and other festive programs. On Christmas Eve, the centers will remain open all night, offering continuous canteen service and entertainment.

Sonja Henie has sent free tickets to the centers for the opening performance of her ice revue in the Chicago Stadium on Christmas night, and boxes have been reserved for veterans from Vaughan General, Gardiner General, Mayo General, Great Lakes Naval, and Fort Sheridan station hospitals.

Albert Spalding Gives His Home Town a Brilliant and Uncommonly Beautiful Recital

People who believe you get what you give had their innings at Orchestra hall yesterday when Albert Spalding played one of the most satisfying recitals of his distinguished career for a home town audience, with the gifted André Benoist at the piano. For the violinist whose linguistic talents got him mixed up in World War I. adventures with no less picturesque a companion than Fiorello La Guardia was back in Italy in World War II., and not to fiddle while Rome burned, either. As spokesman for the high command in the psychological warfare of words, he talked while Rome surrendered. This purely voluntary gesture took a sizable chunk out of Mr. Spalding's career, but it won him more than the grateful citations of three army commanders. It sent him back richer in experience and refreshed in music, two of the most agreeable things that can happen to an artist.

You often hear it said in commiseration of popular performers who spend long seasons in concert that if they get tired of the repertory and play perfunctorily, who can blame them? This airy point of view fails to note that boredom is catching, and the wise audience is quick to understand that the dull one is the player, not the music. But that same audience knows when to be generous, too. If familiar music sounds newly minted in exquisite freshness of performance, gratitude is heaped on the artist whose playing caused the miracle of re-creation.

So we were deeply in Mr. Spalding's debt yesterday, particularly for the pure song of Mozart's D major concerto and the dark, silken romanticism of Brahms' major sonata. Both were superbly realized in music making that understood and communicated the music. There were other good things, too, for it was a rich program. Mr. Spalding began with the andante and allegro from Tartini's Sonata in G minor, and ended with a truly scintillant performance of Saint-Saëns' Introduction and Rondo Capriccioso, and in between there was perfect Debussy in "En Bateau," touched off with a cobwebby piece of Paul Sladek's called "The Isle of Mists," Kreisler's arrangement of Falla's Spanish Dance, and a spicy but patrician Jamaican Rumba by Benjamin Primrose that was as right in its own realm as the Mozart.

Notes

"Polonaise," the Chopin operetta with Jan Kiepura and Martha Eggerth, ends its New York engagement Jan. 12 and reaches Chicago early in March on a tour to the west coast. No definite date or theater have been announced. . . . Sonia Sharnova is ill and the role of the witch in "Hansel and Gretel" may be sung by May Barron and Ilma Bayle, one at a time, of course. . . . When Markova and Dolin danced at New Trier high school the other night the program said the recital was sponsored by "S. Hurox" and that the next attraction would be "Francis Catti, violinist."

Dean Gilkey Tells Christmas Hope for an Enduring Peace

Elements which work together toward achievement of a college degree, including the institution's benefactors and faculty members and the students' diligence and persistence were discussed in Dean Charles W. Gilkey's baccalaureate sermon yesterday before 213 autumn graduates of the University of Chicago. Speaking in Rockefeller Memorial chapel, Dean Gilkey compared those with coöperative forces leading toward world peace.

The world's hope for peace this Christmas, he said, is more urgent than at any Christmas in all these 19 centuries. "That, too, will call for the diligence and persistence of all those who shape the policies that lead toward war or peace. But it will also depend upon the attitudes and faith of the common folk the world around. In such folk Jesus had a deep and abiding faith, and among them the celebration of His birth has always found understanding and welcome," said Dean Gilkey.

Urgent Pleas for Clothing Made by Sally

BY SALLY JOY BROWN

Mrs. S., a north side mother of two children, a boy 15 and girl 10, has requested aid in obtaining clothing. Since her husband's separation from the family, his support payments, altho of small amount, have been irregular. Mrs. S. has been unable to work the last year owing to illness, which caused her to lose weight consistently. Her uncertain income, coupled with medical expenses, has resulted in an accumulation of debts, and further needs, such as heavy winter clothing for herself and children, have become a source of worry. The boy, a high school student, can use anything in size 16 and the daughter in size 10. Mrs. S. wears size 12.

Mrs. B., also requesting clothing, is the mother of four children whose sizes are 2 and 5 for the boys, 4 for the two girls, and 20 for herself. Her husband has been hospitalized a year and there is little hope of an early release. She, therefore, has been earning the living, paying essential household bills from a meager salary, but is unable to provide warm clothing to guard her children against repeated colds.

Mr. M., of the south side, appeals for clothing for his six motherless children, 3 girls, ranging in age from 9 months to 6 years, and three boys, from 2½ to 8. He has recovered from an illness which kept him bedfast for a year, and upon his return to his job was put on a late work shift to enable him to cook and otherwise care for his children. Their recent illness has necessitated his staying home altogether, stopping his income. Before those of school age can return to school, clothing must be provided.

Household Forum

—By Louise Bargelt—

Laura A., Elmhurst—To clean fine lace I use my mother's method. I cover it with calcined magnesia after spreading it on clean white paper. Then I cover it with another piece of paper and place between leaves of a heavy book. After two or three days I shake out the powder and the laces come out clean.

Elsie B., Chicago—To make the job of hanging clothes easier in winter, when I have mittens on my hands, I clip clothespins to my coat sleeves. No fumbling for them in the basket when they are neatly "regimented" on my sleeves.

Mrs. H. A., Bay City, Mich.—I find that occasionally my dining room furniture needs to be washed. Glass rings and sticky little finger prints leave stubborn marks that polish won't always remove. I do a quick, light job, and rinse and dry promptly.

Now—Your Idea Please!

Looking at Hollywood

—By Hedda Hopper—

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Dec. 16—"The Ambassador's Wife," by John Gunther, is now owned by Paramount. Gilbert Seldes will write the screen play. Now, let's see—who in our town would make a good ambassador's wife: Irene Dunne, Rosalind Russell, Ingrid Bergman? O, shucks, let them cast their own picture. . . . Irwin Shaw, out of uniform, will adapt "Arch of Triumph" for Charlie Einfeld's first picture. Shaw is off to New York to consult Author Erich Remarque and may bring him back here—we hope. . . . Reggie Gardner gets his wish. He'll play King Charles II. in "Forever Amber." It's the best role he's had at Twentieth-Century. In fact, it's as good a role as anybody ever had.

Case of the Torso Tiffs

Marie McDonald [the Body] had no intention of breaking her divorce story at this time. It wouldn't surprise me to see her and Vic Orsatti dancing cheek to cheek New Year's eve and starting proceedings the day after. She's not out to "take the guy." The only lawyer she's got is Vic's. . . . Una Merkel called to say good-by. She's off with her father to Tampa, Fla., then North Carolina and New York, where she's wanted for Hal Kennedy's play, "The Return of the Hero," which she hopes Max Gordon will produce this season. Una, in the pink of condition again, said she never knew any one could have such friends as she discovered during her illness. . . . Bob Cobb is at the Mayo clinic for observation. We hope he'll make it home for Christmas. . . . Marjorie Rambeau, since her accident, has to walk with canes. Even so, she's en route to New York to rehearse Lulu Vollmer's new play. Her part was rewritten so she could play it on canes.

The Play's the Thing

Marsha Hunt has two stage offers. She ought to do a Broadway play. Ruth Hussey did, and look what's happened. Everybody wants her. . . . Anita Colby leaves for New York Jan. 3 to confer with some writing gals. She plans to send a team of them around the country to do the same good job for "Duel in the Sun" as her other project did for "Cover Girl." One of the girls may be Inga Arvaad. After a couple of weeks in New York, Anita wants to rest in Palm Beach and Nassau. . . . What a welcome is being prepared for Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lindheimer and daughter, Margaret, when they take over the mansion they bought from the Duncan McMartins. The Lindheimers will be here for the Santa Anita opening.

Buildup Gets Turndown

Louis B. Mayer for the second time has turned down a weekly magazine on doing his life story. Said he: "I want my stars to get all the breaks. I'm only the man behind the scenes, and I want to remain there except when my Busher wins a race." . . . When Musical Director Leith Stevens married Peggy McCartney of Sydney, Australia, Wilbur Hatch substituted for him on his program. . . . Desi Arnaz launches his new 22 piece band with a concert for his friends in the Birmingham hospital Jan. 2. . . . Tony Martin, who doffed his uniform Friday, goes right into a "Mail Call" broadcast for men overseas. . . . David Rose is wanted for the musical score of "Humoresque." Joan Crawford will have 25 lavish gowns for her dipsomaniac role in that picture. A well dressed dipso, I must say. . . . Tex McCrary joins his wife, Jinx Falkenburg, here Tuesday. Jinx has his initials embroidered on all her suits. It makes quite a splash.

A Little of This and That

Dorothy McGuire would be embarrassed if she could hear the praise Dore Schary is giving her work in "Till the End of Time." . . . Bill Powell's mother is spending the holidays here with her sister and favorite niece. . . . Anne Shirley will take her little girl to New York for a white Christmas. . . . Paul McNamara, just back from New York, may return there to spend Christmas with his charming wife, if she can't get off her radio show. . . . Jimmy Durante, asked to use a player piano, said, "No can do. I'm afraid a midget Jose Iturbi will pop out at me." When the owner of one they located was told who'd beat the Ivories, he asked for a $2,500 bond. Said he: "Durante doesn't play 'em—he wrecks 'em!"

Polish Groups Hold Mass for Former Premier Witos

A requiem high mass for Wincenty Witos, thrice premier of Poland and leader of the Peasant party, was held yesterday in St. Stephen's church, Ohio and Sangamon st., sponsored by the Polish Alma Mater, the Polish Villagers alliance, and the Polish American council, with many Polish parishes coöperating. The celebrant was the Rev. Mieczyslaw M. Starzynski, editor of the Polish Daily News, and the Rev. Wladyslaw Zapala preached the sermon. A civic memorial was held at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon in Alma Mater hall, 1645 Milwaukee av.

"With Bated Breath" . . . . By Alice Campbell

(Copyright: 1945: By Mrs. Alice Ormond Campbell)

INSTALMENT XXXVII.

MURDERED

Avis' heart almost stopped beating. It was by pure accident Robin had let his gaze drift downward, just thru inability to meet those cold, fear haunted eyes; but his galvanic grip on himself had been too apparent. Maud remained self-absorbed, braced in every muscle, wholly oblivious of the combined scrutiny now centered on her feet.

Inspector Headcorn must have been sidetracked into the ravine before reaching the house. Suddenly solid steps creaked on the basement stair, and he was there looking in on them. Miss Erica's body had been found.

"Where?" came in a whisper from Maud. "She's—dead?"

"She has been dead some little time, Miss Bolles. At the extreme foot of the slope, lying half in the stream. No, stop where you are, please. There is nothing you can do, and, in fact, I must make it plain that for the present not one of you is to quit this room. Except Dr. Bruce, who, as police surgeon, must inspect the remains in their original position. My sergeant will take his place. Doctor, will you come?"

Olive had risen, Moravian was clawing furtively at a mummified throat, but the deep exhaled breath came from Maud.

Robin moved towards her. "I'm going to get you a drink," he muttered. Before their eyes Maud stiffened, grew taller, as tho new force were pouring into her veins.

"Stop," she commanded. "Do I understand that at a moment like this I—we—are to be restrained from going to our own rooms? It is incomprehensible, an affront! I demand an explanation."

The Yard detective met the challenge. His hesitation was brief.

"Very well, Miss Bolles. Even without medical verdict I can inform you that your sister's fall was not due to accidental loss of footing, altho undoubtedly this was the conclusion we have been intended to draw. The victim was deliberately thrown from a great height. She was dead or nearly so before she struck the ground."

In the stricken room no one moved. Avis, a horrible sickness inside, thought, O, it's true.

"It's mad! It's wickedly preposterous," Miss Bolles muttered. "Naturally she ran after the rabbit and lost her footing. Nothing, let me inform you, nothing could restrain my sister from taking these frightful risks. I have taken every precaution apart from locking her in. Her liability at any moment to become unconscious. . . . What business has Scotland Yard to enter my home and misconstrue——"

"The evidence, Miss Bolles, speaks for itself. Your sister met her death by foul play, and the person responsible is now present within these four walls. I must tell you at once that I am here primarily in connection with my investigation into another murder—that of your late employe, Agatha Trimble. Incidentally, as it also may have a bearing, the death of Pvt. Bandy, whose wife was your evacuee."

The blow told. Maud seemed fighting for breath.

"You cannot mean this, inspector. Two thieves!"

"Thieves or not, they died. In each instance the circumstances call for a different line of inquiry from any yet taken. I repeat that I shall keep you all in a body till I have joined your own local inspector in a careful examination of the house. Inspector Crewhurst is outside now, and it will be for your chief constable to decide whether or not I am to take on this matter of your sister."

The Yard inspector and Bruce left the room. Quietly Sgt. Budworth stepped inside as the woman round whom a trap was closing sank dizzied into her usual chair.

Far down the thickly wooded precipice the three men stooped over the pathetic bundle of broken bones. The head injury could be distinctly seen, also the deep violet lines graven in parallel marks at the two sides of the skinny ribs. The revealing imprint of gripping fingers and thumbs.

"She bruised easily," Bruce muttered. "I had occasion to make that discovery some time ago."

"She did," Inspector Headcorn grimly confirmed. "The murderer has left his or her stamp. See the sooty grains of cement deposited in the skull wound? She didn't cry out because a hand was crammed in her mouth, and at the same instant she was brained by, we'll say, a jagged slab of roof tile, which we'll probably find when there's daylight. Then she was picked up and thrown."

"Not from the roof," the Wyfforde inspector mumbled, his face curiously shocked in the pallid lamp glow. "I've always thought that parapet was too low. If you fainted you just could tip over. . . . A push would do it, if she was mad enough to have climbed outside."

"A push? Then what do you make of these marks? We'll get them photographed and put on record. If the doctor won't mind stopping down here till we can get one of your men to relieve him, you and I, Crewhurst, will get busy indoors."

On the roof, torchlight disclosed a maze of dog tracks, blown shreds of black rabbit fur, and, at the point where the slipper had been recovered, a section of missing tile. Closer examination must wait till morning; but Headcorn was more concerned with the rooms immediately beneath. The boxroom lay at the rear. Puzzled, Inspector Crewhurst watched the Yard man's torch explore the ranks of trunks and valises. What did Headcorn expect to find?

"The Trimble woman's suitcase. Thought as much. It's been removed."

"O, no! Not the bag? Why, man, that would mean——"

"Sorry, Crewhurst, I've not had chance to pass on the information. It was here as late as 7 this evening. Let's take a look at Miss Erica's rooms."

Two minutes later the two detectives were bending over a pillowcase, still hollowed by a sleeper's head. Along the inner surface of the linen ran a dingy smear which felt gritty when touched. Headcorn grunted. "We'll preserve this pillow, shall we? Open casement I see. Three windows and a low window seat."

"Yes, this is one of the turrets; but you don't suppose——?

"We'll try what finger prints we may find. Fortunately I brought along my outfit."

Quickly Headcorn dusted the uncushioned seat and window frame with his gray powder. Not so much as a solitary print stood forth. "Significant, eh, Crewhurst? I don't know whether she or Miss Marriott opened the casement for the night, but since that was done every trace has been wiped clean."

"Then why . . . Is it your theory the roof didn't figure at all?"

"I am convinced the victim never went near the roof. The whole rabbit business was an elaborate blind. But suppose we proceed with the circumstantial evidence. We've a suitcase to locate, and somewhere there should be a pearl handled automatic. You lead the way."

Other objects were in Headcorn's mind as they conducted the careful search. In Mrs. Marks' room nothing was discovered.

Spice cakes, chocolate cakes, and gold cakes all are delicious when made by a good cook, but the choice for birthdays and other special occasions is a fluffy white cake. A white cake somehow has to be a better product than the others in order to meet the standards of those who eat it. Less than perfect texture, even a certain amount of dryness can be tolerated in one of the colored cakes, but a white cake must be pure white, fine grained, high, tender, fluffy, and moist, or it is disappointing. Flaws in white cake stand out like soot on snow.

Many women find it difficult to fold egg whites into cake batter without breaking down air cells and consequently losing fluff in the cake. It's easier to fold in a meringue, and that's what we do in this cake. It's a trick to improve the cake reputation of many a cook.

Delicate White Cake
[Two 9-inch layers]

½ cup margarine or vegetable shortening
1 cup sugar
2½ cups sifted cake flour
2½ teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon cream of tartar
½ cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
6 egg whites
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar

Cream shortening thoroly and beat in sugar. Cream until fluffy and light. Mixing thoroly in this step is important. Sift cake flour before measuring, then sift three times more with baking powder and cream of tartar. The cream of tartar helps produce snowy whiteness. Add dry mixture and milk in alternate portions, beating batter well after each addition. Add vanilla. Whip egg whites with salt until stiff and glossy; then fold in the ½ cup sugar, a little at a time, making a fluffy meringue. Fold meringue into cake batter. Spread batter in two greased, wax paper lined pans and bake at 375 degrees for half an hour. Put layers together just before serving, using whipped cream, sweetened slightly and flavored with vanilla. Top with whipped cream or frosting. If you can spare the sugar, make seven minute frosting and filling and sprinkle with coconut.

That's the orthodox method of making white cake. Many women are enthusiastic about the new quick and easy method of cake mixing. Here's a white cake made that way. This cake is notable for velvety texture.

Fluffy White Cake
[Two 8-inch layers]

2 cups plus 2 tablespoons sifted all purpose flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups sugar
½ cup vegetable shortening
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
Whites of 4 large eggs

Sift flour, baking powder, salt, and sugar into mixing bowl. Add shortening, milk, and vanilla. Beat for two minutes by the clock. Add unbeaten egg whites. Beat 2 minutes longer. Pour batter into greased, wax paper lined pans and bake at 350 degrees about 30 minutes. Cool and put layers together and frost with any favorite icing.

The fluffy white cake is much more easily made on a mixer than by hand, but if you have a strong right arm you won't get too tired beating it by hand. Time out for momentary rest periods is permitted.

Practical Designs

Homemakers never seem to have enough comfortable, attractive aprons these days. Style No. 3058 not only is comfortable, but it has the added attraction of unusual pockets. The unusual pocket motif is carried out in the potholders. The pattern is designed for small, medium, and large sizes. Medium size requires 2¾ yards of 35 inch material to make apron and potholders. Men's underwear, so hard to find in the shops these days, can be made easily. Style No. 3868 is designed for sizes 30 to 44. Size 38 requires 1⅝ yards of 35 inch material to make the shirt; 1⅛ yards of 35 inch material to make the shorts.

Order Clotilde patterns from Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Annex, NEW YORK CITY. Print name and address; state size. Each pattern is 10 cents, plus 2 cents for mailing. The fall and winter fashion book, on sale at Tribune Public Service offices, is 15 cents; 18 cents if ordered by mail with a pattern.

Yule Flowers Are Available, but Order Early

BY REA SEEGER

Luxurious long stemmed roses, in what the florists call "double pinched" blooms—which require six months or longer to grow—are dizzily high priced. And you may expect to pay more than last Christmas for the shorter stemmed roses, too. And holiday roses for civilians will take second place, as the orders from the men in service again have precedence and those lads are specifying roses. However, there is plenty of variety in other cut flowers, plants, and corsage arrangements.

All you have to do is remember to get your floral orders in just as early as you can. Take your lists in today, and forget them. On Christmas eve or Christmas day your florist will do the rest. Poinsettias, traditional Christmas plants, come in scarlet shades and some deep, spicy pinks. Vivid colors in potted plants such as cyclamen, begonia, and azaleas contrast with the deep, waxy green foliage. These plants, with only average care, last surprisingly long, and those with bright scarlet berries and miniature peppers last even longer than the flowered plants.

The famous Chicago grown carnations, by far the biggest and most vivid in color with double the usual amount of spicy fragrance, are going to be the most popular flowers for vase, jar, or for ingeniously arranged corsages. Such corsages can be worn for the shoulder, for the coiffure, or tucked in the belt. Light pink and the flesh pink carnations are especially lovely for evening clothes. Camellias are exotically perfect in the coral pink varieties, deep pink, or romantic white. Gardenias, too, rate high as dramatic contrasts for party or dance dresses as well as on winter suits and coats. Violets, sweet peas, and snapdragons are three exquisitely fragrant blooms that will be available at Christmas.

Thru the Looking Glass

One of the greatest of the American fashion designers has exciting theories about the relationship between fashions and fragrances. They're sound and they're particularly noteworthy right now because they make it easier to choose a perfume for some one else.

The designer, a woman of exquisite taste and great skill in dressing women superbly to their type, recently introduced some perfumes bearing her own distinguished name. There are four of them, each different from the other and each exciting in itself.

One is for the tailored type of women, who like good suits and rather businesslike clothes. It's crisp, sophisticated, with a faint suggestion of amber that enriches it and gives it the memorable quality.

One of the perfumes is on the out and out dramatic side. You know the kind of woman who can and should wear it. She wears black a great deal and has a penchant for glamorous, daring hats and striking costume jewelry.

Then, of course, there is one for the woman who is utterly feminine. She likes ruffly touches and pretty colors; her perfume, according to the designer, should be airy and pretty, too.

And there is one for the young, active kind of gal. This is spicy and bright, a perfect choice for the young in heart.

The shopper with a general idea of the kind of clothes a woman likes can, thus simply, choose a perfume that she'll like too. Prices: $10 to $35 in de luxe bottles, $3 to $13 in simple ones. ELEANOR NANGLE

ANSWERS TO SATURDAY'S QUIZ

Q. 1—As South you hold:
♠A 10 9 3 ♥J 10 4 ♦A Q J 9 7 6 ♣—
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 diamond	Pass	1 heart	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—One spade. There are apparently several choices which include rebidding diamonds and supporting hearts. The hand is too strong for a mere two diamond rebid, and not quite good enough for a jump bid to three diamonds, so that the choice narrows down. While the spade bid is not forcing, partner will nevertheless in these circumstances exert every effort to speak again and a better idea of the hand may be obtained from his next move.

Q. 2—Partner opens with one club and you hold:
♠A K J 9 8 6 3 2 ♥A ♦Q J 10 4 ♣—
What is your response?

A.—Two spades. Despite the misfit this hand holds forth distinct promises of a slam and the immediate slam signal should therefore be given. Contrary to popular belief, this does not necessarily denote satisfaction with partner's suit. It merely states that there are present strong suspicions of a slam and the responder has a fair idea of where the hand will eventually play.

Q. 3—As South you hold:
♠A K 7 6 5 ♥K Q 4 ♦A Q 7 ♣J 3
The bidding has proceeded:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	4 spades	Pass

What do you bid now?

A.—Pass. Partner has announced a hand that has great trump support and some distribution [a singleton or a void] but not very much in the way of high cards. His maximum honor strength will be 1½ tricks. If he had as many as two tricks and favorable distribution and trump support he would have a three spade response. The chances for a slam are, therefore, so remote as to be ignored.

Q. 4—Both sides vulnerable, you are South and hold:
♠J 2 ♥A 5 4 ♦Q 10 9 6 ♣K 10 5 3
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South
1 spade	2 diamonds	?

What do you bid?

A.—Double. Resist the impulse to bid two no trumps in favor of wielding the axe. Your own hand will produce at least four tricks against the diamond contract and partner may be counted on to produce three, which adds up to a sure set of 500 points with the possibility of a greater harvest if partner has a better hand. Furthermore if partner has a minimum hand it is highly doubtful that your side can go game, so that you should regard 500 points as a sound settlement of the case from your standpoint.

Q. 5—Partner opens with one club and you hold:
♠K 6 4 2 ♥Q 7 4 3 ♦Q 7 6 5 ♣9
What is your response?

A.—One diamond. Holding a king and two queens it is your duty to bid once. But you have no intention of engaging in any more bidding unless partner comes up with something dramatic. You naturally have no compunction of game but should be sure to find the best parking place. This purpose can be accomplished by responding with one diamond. If partner has four cards in either major he will be at ease to bid that suit at the level of one. The objection to responding with one spade is that partner might have four hearts and find it too expensive to show them. The same objection applies to a response of 1 no trump, which should not be considered.

Q. 6—Partner opens with one heart and you hold:
♠K Q 5 ♥6 4 2 ♦K 6 3 ♣A Q 9 7
What is your response?

A.—Two no trump. This hand is just the equal of an opening bid and you should be willing to guarantee game. With this distribution and all suits protected the game is probably in no trump. A direct forcing response of two no trump is, therefore, the proper procedure. Nothing is to be gained on hands like this by an indirect bid of two clubs. Where the direct bid gives an exact description of the hand it should be preferred to some roundabout call.

Q. 7—As South you hold:
♠A Q 9 7 6 5 3 ♥10 7 ♦K J ♣6 4
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	1 spade	Pass
3 diamonds	Pass	3 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	?

What do you bid now?

A.—Six spades [or five diamonds]. On the mere promise of a trick from you, partner has undertaken to guarantee game by his jump shift to three diamonds. You have about three or four playing tricks more than he has any reason to believe you have. It certainly adds up to 12. Your only concern is the two losing clubs. But the bidding indicates that partner cannot have two losers in that suit. In the first place he named three suits and jumped, which conventionally promises a singleton or void of the fourth suit. Secondly, if he had two losing clubs it is doubtful that his hand would have been strong enough to warrant a jump shift, to be followed up by a spade raise.

Q. 8—As South you hold:
♠K Q 10 7 5 ♥9 4 ♦A J 10 5 ♣J 5
The bidding has proceeded:

North	East	South	West
1 club	1 heart	1 spade	2 hearts
2 spades	4 hearts	4 spades	Pass
Pass	5 hearts	Double	Pass
Pass	Pass

What is your opening lead?

A.—A heart. Since your side has the preponderance of high cards and holds the bulk of all three suits other than trumps, it is clear that the opposition will have to rely on distribution for many of their tricks. Dummy will surely be very short in spades and to prevent declarer from taking full advantage of this condition trumps should be led early and often.

Children Often Wreck Day's Plan of Work

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

[Copyright: 1945: By News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Schedules, time budgets, daily programs, whatever you may call them, often get smashed to atoms when you have young children. Or older ones too, for that matter.

I am always awe-struck by women who can run their houses and families like clock-work. And I'm afraid really I am intolerant of "planners" who figure out, for other people, how to spend each hour of every day, in the running of a house and a family.

In the first place, they rarely leave any loose time on the schedule for those dozens of miscellaneous things that don't fit under any chore classification. Also they don't make any allowances for human error and fallibility or unexpected interruptions.

A general plan for your day and week is all right. But to map out the activities of the day exactly—well, how can you? In the half-hour that is left for gathering the laundry Sue may have had an upset stomach and had to have all her clothes changed. In the hour arranged for a busy mother's nap, the coalman, the gasman, and the dry cleaning man all may have decided to appear, out of their regular schedule.

The brief time planned for doing the wash in the washer has to be multiplied many times, because the washing machine is broken and they "can't get the part" for weeks. Or [as in our case] the coil of the automatic heater has worn thru, it can't be welded, and no more coils can be had for a month, so every drop of water has to be heated.

Young mothers get discouraged because they read time budgets and feel themselves dumb or inefficient when they can't romp along with them. Well, they shouldn't. Planning is necessary, of course, but children, colds, household appliances, visitors, and so forth, can't respect strict schedules.

Inquiring Camera Girl

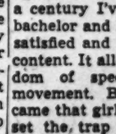
THE QUESTION
Do you think there is such a thing as a contented bachelor?
WHERE ASKED
Seventy-five E. Wacker dr.
THE ANSWERS

Jack Kurtze, office manager, 1348 Bryn Mawr av.—A bachelor may be contented, but he is never really satisfied so long as he is a bachelor. When he is younger he may enjoy it, but when he begins to get older it will close in on him and he will realize that no one has shared his life with him and that he is all alone.

J. M. Callan, theatrical agent, 2340 N. McVickers av.—I thought there was such a thing until three months ago when I proposed. I figured I ought to have some one to help me spend my money. I was contented, but now I suppose I'll be happier than before. When you have everything in life just for yourself you feel selfish.



Bill Parent, theatrical booking agent, 6731 Jeffery blvd.—For a half a century I've been a bachelor and I've been satisfied and perfectly content. It allows freedom of speech and movement. But along came that girl and she set the trap and I'm going to marry her in February. I've been a bachelor long enough to suit me.

G. J. Kofl, auditor, 1638 W. 21st st.—Definitely no! There's no such thing as a contented bachelor. When I was a bachelor I thought I was content. But when I had to do things for myself the contentment ceased. Now that I've become accustomed to having some one wait upon me hand and foot I wouldn't go back to bachelorhood.

Mary Shevlin, secretary, 7505 Stony Island av.—Of course there are contented bachelors. I think there are some men who have the mental make-up for bachelorhood. They could never be happy in marriage and would make any woman absolutely miserable. A man's occupation can determine whether or not he's content alone.

John King, theatrical agent, 5213 Kenwood av.—Many bachelors are content to be bachelors. They don't have to worry about going home or making excuses as to why they won't be home. They have no one to account to for their actions. They can eat at home or eat out. There's no reason why they shouldn't be content.

Russian Orthodox Church Head Leads Service in English

The Russian Orthodox Holy Trinity cathedral, 1121 N. Leavitt st., was the scene of an unusually impressive service yesterday morning with Metropolitan Theophilus, archbishop of San Francisco, the celebrant. Eight other archbishops and bishops participated in the three hour rites, including Bishop Dionisije of the Serbian Orthodox diocese of Chicago. Making a departure from custom, Metropolitan Theophilus not only preached part of the sermon in English but also sang part of the liturgy in that language.

The metropolitan, who is head of all except a few small Russian Orthodox churches in North America, described the Chicago cathedral as the mother church of the central west, and said that for many years it and its daughter churches have successfully withstood many attacks, especially since the Bolshevik Russian revolution.

Archbishop Leonty of Chicago and the cathedral clergy, including Dean Sergius Sniziroff and the Rev. Emilian Solanka, deacon, were hosts to the hierarchy following the service. These include Archbishops Tikhon of Seattle, Wash., and Vitaly of New York, and Bishops Benjamin of Pittsburgh, Pa., Jeronim of Detroit, Mich., Jossaf of Edmonton, Canada, and Makary of New York.

The Badgers will meet the Sailors in a return game next Sunday at the naval training center. Probable lineups:

IOWA HOST TO NEBRASKA

Iowa City, Ia., Dec. 16 [Special]—Iowa's Hawkeyes engage Nebraska here tomorrow night in a final nonconference tune-up before opening defense of their Big Ten title against Illinois Saturday night. In quest of their 16th straight home victory, the Hawkeyes are rated the favorites to score their fifth victory.

Coach Pops Harrison said today he plans to start the same lineup used in the Iowa conquests so far: Dick Ives and Murray Wier at forward, Clayton Wilkinson at center, and Herb Wilkinson and Ned Postels at guard.

UTAH INVADES MICHIGAN

Ann Arbor, Mich., Dec. 16 [Special] — Michigan's basketball team will face its last non-conference test here tomorrow night when the touring Utah Redskins introduce the Rocky Mountain conference brand of basketball to the Wolverines.

The Utes, National champions two years ago and a perennial power in their own league, are expected to provide stern opposition for Coach Bennie Oosterbaan's team which will open its Western conference season here next Saturday night with Indiana.

Oosterbaan will stick to his usual starting line-up with Glenn Selbo at center, Bob Harrison and John Mullaney at forwards, and Dave Strack and Walt Kell at guards. Utah will play Western Michigan Tuesday night before heading home.

ED [STRANGLER] LEWIS, the indestructible mat man, was born Robert Friedrich. . . . A national magazine recently listed Lewis as one of the 10 best contract bridge players in the United States. . . . "I'm not really that good, tho," Lewis explains, "Actually I'm no better than 12th." . . . One of the Strangler's few wrestling defeats was scored on a strange technicality by Henri de Glane, the Canadian, who was one of Lewis' most persistent challengers some 20 years ago. . . . In the middle of the match, Ed having won a fall, his opponent started shouting, "Foul, foul! The soandso bit me!" The referee examined De Glane's forearm, and, sure enough, tooth marks were plainly visible. . . . He awarded the decision to De Glane, but Lewis and his manager, Billy Sandow, were not thru. . . . Lewis yelled, "You can't do that. I demand that photographs be taken of that bite." . . . The amazed referee wanted to know why in the world they wanted a snapshot. . . . "Why," roared the furious Strangler, "to prove they're HIS tooth marks, not mine. He bit himself." . . . Few speed skaters will allow any one else to sharpen their favorite blades. . . . The final Notre Dame football anecdote of the season: A sports scribe was checking the Irish lineup with a neighbor. . . . The conversation went like this: Neighbor—"Skoglund." . . . Scribe—"Check." . . . Neighbor—"Berezny." . . . Scribe—"Right." . . . Neighbor—"Mastrangelo." . . . Scribe—"Got it." . . . Neighbor—"Walsh." . . . Scribe—"How do you spell it?" . . . The University of Arizona football team scored 193 points to 12 for all opponents in winning all of its five games.

Henry McGowan, the 18 year old New Yorker who will umpire in the class D Ohio State league next season, says he hopes to attend Ohio State university, but will return each baseball season to his indicator and protector. . . . The Fort Sheridan basketball team averaged 81 points in its first six games of the season. . . . The soldiers defeated the Lake Forest Young Men's club, 91 to 29; the Milwaukee Guards, 76 to 32; Vaughan hospital, 82 to 38; Lake Forest college, 89 to 23; Mayo hospital, 67 to 48, and Percy Jones hospital, 81 to 43. . . . The squad roster includes Dick Foley of the University of Illinois; Dan Pippin of Missouri; Bill Sticklen, Notre Dame; the Smith twins of the University of Cincinnati, Bob Bartlett, a 6 foot 6 inch giant from Michigan State; Irv Cohen of Wayne university; Jack King of River Falls Teachers; Gene Melchiorre of Wisconsin, and Bill Mann of Purdue. . . . The post athletic officer, 1st Lt. Earl P. Beckman, would like to book some competition strong enough to extend the boys. . . . The University of Wisconsin basketball lineup includes Bob Cook, forward, and Doug Kitchen, center. . . . Both are ex-service men playing their first season.

Is There a Santa?

Do you believe in Santa?
Or are you old and wise,
And don't believe in fooling kids
And telling little lies.

If you don't I'm sorry,
[No reason I should be],
For you're the one who's losing—
It means not a thing to me.

But if you still are doubtful,
And the truth you'd like to find,
Just watch the kids on Christmas morn,
And then make up your mind!
—Robert Blackadder

It Happened in Iowa

Following is a facsimile of a homemade sign which recently made its appearance in an Iowa [remember now, I don't say Dubuque] rooming house, placed there by a patient and long suffering landlady:

Notice, Please!

Any one accommodating a guest over night there will be an extra charge of 50 cents. And, too, let's be conservative with gas and electric. There's know landlady, I don't care who she may be, cares to go thru the halls in the day time and notice lights burning in the day time. After all God gave us light & let's use it. Shall we? Thank you kindly, The Landlady.

The Hunt—1945

December skies are drab and bleak
Like great batons the trees
Conduct the frigid arctic winds
In winter symphonies.
I'd choose a hearth and easy chair
And rosy dreams pursue
But my lady is a huntress and
I must go hunting, too.

O, nature lover, curse me not
No lethal art I ply
No devil's beam o' carnage
Ever glistens in my eye;
My lady bags no bird or beast
At most her only hope
Is sugar, shirts and underwear
And if she's lucky—soap!

O, a huntress, yes, a huntress,
Aye, a huntress is my spouse—
Say! Incidentally, brother,
Can you help me hunt a house?

BY EDWARD BURNS

Four goals in the last 10 minutes and 16 seconds of their game with the Detroit Red Wings, best defensive team in the National Hockey league. That's the dose the tally-mad Blackhawks poured on the Detroiters last night for a 6 to 4 victory in the Stadium. The Hawks entered the final period on the short end of a 4 to 2 count, and apparently nervous and conscious of the jinx reputation the Detroiters have enjoyed these many annums.

The first Chicago goal in the belated splurge was Doug Bentley's second. He was assisted by Bill Mosienko and brother Max. The Hawks, however, continued in arrears until about four minutes later when Pete Horeck tied the score from close-in after getting the puck on long passes from Clint Smith and Eddie Wares.

Hawks Have Just Begun!

This sent the crowd of 16,571 frosteaters into ecstasies—but the Hawks had just begun to skate. George Allen shot from near the blue line to beat Goalie Harry Lumley and supply what proved to be the winning goal. Then, with only 45 seconds of the game remaining the Bentley brothers stole the puck, delivered it to Mosienko, who beat Lumley on a perfectly timed and aimed shot from directly in front of the cage — Lumley, who previous to last night had seen only 33 pucks whizz by him in 15 games this season.

During the night's Hawk endeavor, which started with Doug Bentley's first goal [assisted by Max] for a 1 to 1 tie at the end of the first period, the league pace setting Hawk line composed of the Bentley brothers and Mosienko fattened up some more.

Max Bentley, the league's individual scoring leader had three assists to bring his point total to 30, with 17 goals and 13 assists; Mosienko runner-up to Max, in the individual reckonings, brought his point total to 24, with a goal and assist. He now has 10 goals and 13 assists. Doug Bentley, with two goals and one assist, brought his point total to 18, with 8 goals and 10 assists.

Hawks Are Moving Up

Clint Smith, another league leader, had to be content with an assist point for a season total of 19.

All of which compilation is no reflection on the urgency of goals scored last night by Red Hamill, Horeck, and Allen.

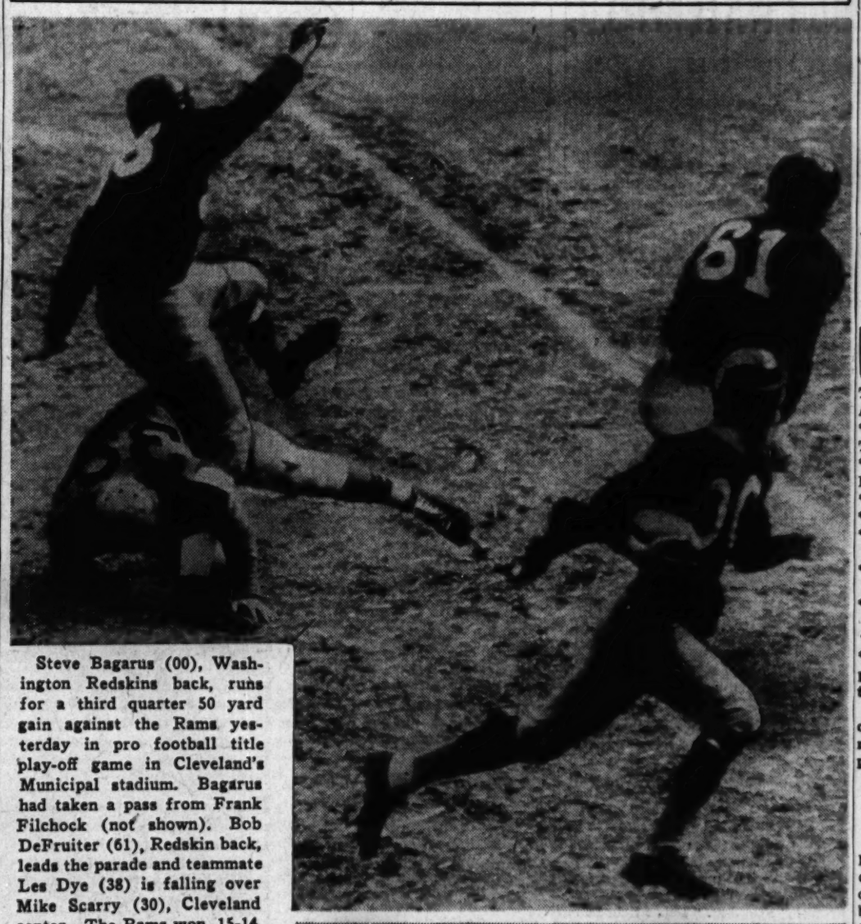
Last night's whirlwind success, by the way, enabled the Hawks to remain in second place, a game behind the Montreal Canadiens, and a game ahead of the third place Boston Bruins, who supplanted the Red Wings in third place.

MILWAUKEE PIN STAR'S 1756 TOPS DETROIT MEET

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 16 (AP)—Ray Schanen of Milwaukee, Wis., rolled the highest series in the three year history of the Vogue Classic and moved into first place ahead of some of the nation's top bowlers over the week-end. His total of 1756 displaced Wally Rappenhagen of Detroit, who had taken the lead a week ago.

Jules Sowa of Chicago, moved into third place with 1692, Charlie Kotarski of Detroit was fourth with 1691, and Ed Stroster, another Detroiter, fifth with 1688. Joe Wilman, national individual champion, shot 1609, while Paul Krumske of Chicago had 1501.

A REDSKIN'S FEET HIT THE TRAIL



Steve Bagarus (00), Washington Redskins back, runs for a third quarter 50 yard gain against the Rams yesterday in pro football title play-off game in Cleveland's Municipal stadium. Bagarus had taken a pass from Frank Filchock (not shown). Bob DeFruiter (61), Redskin back, leads the parade and teammate Les Dye (38) is falling over Mike Scarry (30), Cleveland center. The Rams won, 15-14.

19TH VICTORY OF YEAR FOR NELSON

Byron's 273 Captures Fort Worth Tourney

Fort Worth, Tex., Dec. 16 (AP)—Byron Nelson closed out the year in golf with his 19th tournament victory today as he swept over icy Glen Garden country club course with a 60—70—136 for the final 36 holes to give him a total of 273—11 under par—and first money in the Fort Worth $10,000 Open.

The runner-up was Jimmy Demaret of Houston — who closed with 281, one stroke better than Harold McSpaden of Sanford, Me.

McSpaden finished with a rush to edge into third place. He scored a 65 on the last 18 to tie the competitive course record set by Nelson yesterday.

Nelson drew down $2,000 in Victory bonds and boosted his golf earnings for the year to $66,600—the largest any player ever has compiled in a 12 month period. McSpaden, winning $1,000, brought his total for the year to $34,200 and second high money man.

Gene Sarazen, New York veteran who had 142 thru yesterday to be among the top 12, was forced to withdraw today due to an attack of grippe.

C. Y. O. Boxers End Drills for Title Fights Tomorrow

BY FRANK MASTRO

Thirty-two of Chicago's finest amateur boxers ended sparring drills yesterday for the 15th Catholic Youth organization tournament finals in the Colesium tomorrow night. They will confine themselves to light loosening up exercises today and then await the gong which will send them into action in this first post-war fistic spectacle sponsored by the C. Y. O. Sixteen championships will be determined — eight each in the open and novice classes.

Fans are showing high interest in the impending battles, especially the open lightweight struggle between Pete Diaz and Ernest Mosley. Rivalry is keen in every weight, but none will be more intense than that existing between Diaz, 16 year old representative of St. Francis Assisi parish, and Mosley of St. Anselm, who also is 16.

Meeting for Seventh Time

These ambitious battlers will be meeting for the seventh time tomorrow. Each has won three decisions, thus the approaching clash will be the rubber. Their previous fights were classics in the give and take sport despite the fact no title was at stake.

Mosley, sophomore at Tilden Tech, has scored 10 victories in 15 contests, including his three conquests of Diaz. The latter, also a second year student at Crane Tech, has been victorious in 18 of his 21 encounters, counting the trio of verdicts scored against Mosley.

Garcia to Face Depillars

Diaz is one of two boxers from St. Francis Assisi remaining in the meet. The other is Reyes Garcia, novice flyweight, who faces Hilton Depillars for the 112 pound championship in this division. Depillars also represents St. Anselm, along with Mosley and Art Raby, who meets Jim Hurst of St. Mel High school for the open light heavyweight title. Hurst is the only St. Mel High boxer to qualify for the championship finals.

That means St. Elizabeth High, which still has four fighters in competition, may be the new team champion. This foursome of novices includes Carlton Inniss, 118 pounds; Rufus Johnson, 135; Art White, 147, and Ernest Ayers, 160.

Boxers from 25 Institutions

Inniss is paired with Salvador Gamboa of Our Lady of Guadalupe, Johnson with Jack Morrissey, Queen of Angels; White with Richard Neveux, De Paul academy, and Ayers with Goodwain Murry, Corpus Christi.

Neveux, 16, and 5 feet 10 inches tall, has a record of four victories in five matches.

Twenty parishes and high schools and the Lewis School of Aeronautics have boxers still in the running for championships.

These institutions and the number of survivors follow:

St. Ann, St. Augustine, Santa Maria Incoronata, St. Attracta [Cicero], St. Philomena, St. Matthew, St. Mel High, St. Barbara [Brookfield], Our Lady of Guadalupe, De Paul academy, Corpus Christi, and Holy Name cathedral, each one; St. Columbkille, Lewis School of Aeronautics, St. Francis Assisi, Queen of Angels, and St. Joseph [Summit], each two; St. Anselm, St. Elizabeth parish, each three, and St. Elizabeth High, four.

In making this announcement, the committee said it was asking all sports organizations in Canada to be prepared to recommend for entry a full team in every line of sport.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 16—The Cleveland Rams are professional football champions of the universe, especially Alaska, Iceland, Siberia, and both poles. In zero temperature, on the tundra of Municipal stadium, the surprise team of the 1945 National Football league today won by the narrowest of margins from the Washington Redskins, 15 to 14.

Each team scored two touchdowns and all four came on passes. The added ingredient was a safety which brought the first two points of the game to the Western champions on one of two freakish goal post plays which definitely decided the issue. The pair of points developed when Sam Baugh, in his own end zone, fired a pass which hit the standards for an automatic safety.

Extra Point Nearly Blocked

Then, after the Redskins had gone ahead in the second quarter, 7 to 2, Bob Waterfield engineered the first Ram touchdown. Waterfield's kick for the extra point was partially blocked, but the ball bounced crazily into the air, came down on the crossbar and bounced over for the point which eventually cheated Washington of a tie.

As champions of professional football the Rams will make their first appearance in the College All-Star game next August in Chicago's Soldiers' field. The Redskins, the team they whipped today, have lost in each of their All-Star adventures.

Municipal stadium would have been packed to its 77,000 limit but for the fact it was a pneumonia trap today. As it was, 32,178 of the 35,305 who bought tickets for the city's first sports extravaganza in 15 years reported in arctic gear. They contributed to a gross game of $164,542, which easily broke the East-West title series playoff record of $146,204.15 set last year in the Polo Grounds.

Waterfield "Underpaid"

Each member of the Cleveland team received a check for $1,469.74, another record, tho there were some who thought Waterfield was underpaid. He left no doubt today that he is the brightest of the National league's new stars. The sunkissed Californian lost none of his ball handling skill despite the numbness which must have been in his hands from the piercing cold.

From his T formation quarter back spot he called all the shots. He completed 14 of 27 passes for 192 yards. He stretched mightily in the fourth quarter when the Redskins were on the march to knock down a pass from Frank Filchock which big Joe Aguirre was ready to take for a game winning touchdown. He sailed three punts out of bounds and cleverly protected that one point lead in a scoreless fourth quarter.

Aguirre Falls on 2 Kicks

The Rams were the better team, but they easily could have lost. Twice in the final quarter Aguirre, the league's leading field goal kicker, had a chance to win the game, but each of his boots failed.

Coach Adam Walsh, like Waterfield a newcomer to pro football, said the game was won, in the final analysis, because of the Rams' superiority in the line. The Rams' young, sturdy and speedy forwards held the Redskins' running game to 32 yards, while Jim Gillette sparked a Cleveland ground assault which pierced the eastern champions' barricade for 180 yards. Jim negotiated 111 yards in 17 trips.

Baugh Completes Only One Pass

The veteran Baugh was a tragic figure in his team's defeat. He entered the game suffering from pulled rib muscles and had to leave after the first quarter. He returned again briefly, but not until the third period did he complete a pass, this one for 7 yards to Steve Bagarus. It was Sam's only completion of the game.

It is doubtful that an under-par Baugh had any bearing on the outcome. Frank Filchock proved an able stand-in, with two of his eight completions in 14 pitches achieving touchdowns.

At the end of the first quarter

Rangers Drop 4-2 Decision to Montreal

New York, Dec. 16 (AP)—The Montreal Canadiens retained their grip on first place in the National Hockey league by defeating the last place New York Rangers, 4 to 2, tonight before a capacity crowd of 15,187 in Madison Square Garden.

The Canadiens set a rapid pace by registering three goals in the first period before the Rangers could get warmed up. Billy Reay, the Canadiens' promising freshman, made two of the goals, with Glenn Harmon setting up both plays. Veteran Elmer Lach connected for the third Montreal score.

BOB WATERFIELD, COACH SHARE IN RAMS' PRAISES

Cleveland, Dec. 16 [Special]—There were pats on the back for all the Rams in the after game celebration here tonight, but Robert Waterfield only patted his pocket, in which rested a brand new three year contract to continue as the quarter back of the new National Football league champions. The golden rookie from the golden west had made good in a big way after one year in the professional ranks.

Another Horatio Alger character in the Ram dressing room was Adam Walsh, coach of a championship team in his first year in the professional ranks.

Crowd Disappointed Both Teams

The managements of both clubs were disappointed in the turnout but admitted it was only to be expected considering the 6 degree above zero temperature.

This is the first title for the Rams, but not the first pro football crown for the city of Cleveland. The Bulldogs won the honors back in 1924, before the playoff system was adopted. That came nine years later, 1933. Harry Robb, the umpire today, played on that Bulldog eleven.

Waterfield Praises Receivers

At least three perfect passes by Waterfield were dropped by frozen fingered receivers, but Bob considered his catchers did a marvelous job, particularly Jim Benton. The Redskins were out for Big Jim, but he still caught three out of the first four passes flung his way.

"There's no doubt in my mind Bob Waterfield is the best passer around," said Jim. "This Filchock is pretty good too."

In addition to signing Waterfield for three years Cleveland has signed other stand-outs to two year contracts. Other National league clubs are adopting the two year contract formula as protection against possible raids by teams in the All-America conference.

The Rams and Redskins will put on an encore of today's 15-14 photo finish on Sept. 10 in a charity game in Los Angeles.

George Trafton perhaps has set a new record as line coach of two different teams which won pro honors in successive seasons. He was Curly Lambeau's helper at Green Bay last season.

Bob Snyder, like Trafton, an ex-Bear, and the Rams' back field coach, made advance preparations for a hotel celebration party, so confident was he of the outcome.

The fans were too cold to marvel at the finesse of the Redskins' 120 piece marching band. The musicians, at the mercy of the frigid blasts sweeping Municipal stadium, grabbed handfuls from the bales of straw around the sidelines and banked it around their feet.

The fact that today's crowd of 32,178 paid $20,000 more than the 46,016 at last year's title battle in the Polo Grounds is traceable to an almost complete sell-out of 17,000 seats at $6.

SIX SIGN WITH MIAMI ELEVEN IN ALL-AMERICA

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 16 (AP)—The signing of six former college football stars by Miami of the All-America conference has been announced by Harvey Hester, president, and Jack Meagher, coach of the Miami club.

The six are: John Steber, who came to Georgia Tech from Vanderbilt and a 1943 All-American guard, now in the navy; Lamar Davis, 1942 half back at Georgia, now in Belgium with the United States infantry; Ernie Mills, 1940 Auburn guard; Jim Reynolds, 1942 Auburn full back; J. T. Ulrich, Kansas end in 1943, and Walter McDonald, Tulane quarter back in 1940-42.

Rams Defeat Redskins to Win Pro Title

the Rams, winners of 9 out of 10 games in the regular season, were ahead, 2 to 0, by the grace of that weird safety. Each scored a touchdown and extra point in the second quarter, giving the western champs a 9 to 7 margin. The Rams pulled away at 15 to 7 in the third quarter but the Redskins came right back for a touchdown which ended the scoring.

Rams Click on Passes

The Rams held on to the opening kick-off, then moved from their own 21 to the Redskins' 5, where they lost the ball on downs. In this 74-yard trip, Jim Benton took passes from Waterfield for 10, 30, and 6 yards. After the Easterners took possession on their 5, Baugh, faking a punt, fumbled, recovered, then grounded the ball intentionally. The penalty moved the ball to the 2½ yard marker. Baugh, again in the end zone, shot a pass off to his left, but it bounced against the goal posts for two Cleveland points. Waterfield passed to Steve Pritko for 7 and 10 yards to Washington's 32 on the last plays of the first quarter.

The Redskins stopped the advance, but Waterfield exacted tribute by punting out on the 4. After the Washington punt, the Rams came up to their 47 where this rally was stopped when Ki Aldrich made the first of two interceptions. On Filchock's unsuccessful pass, a 15 yard roughness penalty put the Rams in trouble for the first time, back on their 38.

Bogarus Breaks Away

This was all the encouragement the Redskins needed. On third down, after two line plays had netted only a yard, Filchock flipped a long one which Steve Bagarus caught on the 12 yard line. At the 8, Waterfield apparently had him nailed, but slippery Steve whirled free and dashed the remaining distance. When Aguirre kicked goal, Washington was on top, 7 to 2.

Each team punted after the kick-off, the Rams winding up on their 30. In six plays they had a touchdown, Gillette took a flat pass for a yard. He hit for 4, then drove thru right tackle for 19 yards to Washington's 46. Wayne Millner, the old Notre Dame star, smeared Waterfield for 5 yards before he could pass, but Bob came back with a 14 yard flip to Jim Benton. Again Waterfield pitched to Benton, who gathered in the ball on the 12 and ran under the goal posts. Then Waterfield did his crossbar football balancing act on the kick for the point and a 9 to 7 edge.

Halt Ram Threat

The Rams took the third quarter kickoff and fought their way to a touchdown in an 81-yard advance on 10 plays, featuring Gillette. He started the procession with a 6-yard gain on a sweep to the left. Fred Gehrke added 3 and Gillette came back with 4 for a first down on the Rams' 32. Benton took a 7 yard pass. Bob Seymour knocked down Waterfield's next throw. Then Gillette carried three times in a row for 15, 1, and 7 yards to the Redskin 38. Gehrke slammed for 5, but the Rams were penalized to Washington's 44 for backs in motion.

On the next play, Gillette took Waterfield's pass, despite some nuisance work by Dick Todd, and ran the remaining 14 yards to score. Waterfield's kick was wide to the right and the westerners had a 15 to 7 lead.

Baugh came back in, but continued to throw wildly, except for the 7-yard gain to Bagarus. The Rams worked down to Washington's 34 where Waterfield had to punt.

This time he curled one out on the 8. The Redskins advanced to their 27, but Merlyn Condit had to punt, giving the Rams the ball on their 44. Two 15-yard penalties sank the Rams at this point and Waterfield finally kicked to Bagarus who returned to his own 30.

Bob DeFruiter dashed 15 yards around the Rams' right end. Bagarus lost a yard on a sweep back to his 44. Then he dashed down the field, took Filchock's pass on the Cleveland 40 and ran to the 6.

Seymour Catches Touchdown Pass

Gil Bouley, the Rams' great freshman tackle from Boston college, smeared Filchock on the 17. Condit picked up 4 and Villanova's Sam Rosato streaked to the 8. It was fourth down and goal to go. There was a crack of lines but suddenly Seymour showed up all alone back of the goal line. Filchock pitched and big Bob caught the ball with just eight seconds remaining. Aguirre's kick brought the score to 15 to 14.

Early in the fourth period the Rams traveled to the Washington 29 on the strength of Gillette's 16 yard run around defensive right end. West caught a pass on the 25, then tried a lateral. The bouncing ball finally was captured by Aldrich. A 41 yard pass from Filchock to Les Dye put the ball on the Rams' 33. Just short of a first down, the Redskins gave Aguirre a chance to put them ahead, but his field goal attempt from the 31 was to the left.

Redskins' Last Chance Misses

With four minutes left the desperate Redskins started another rally when Bagarus came back to his 42 with a punt. Cecil Hare caught a pass for 13, then another one for 7 to the Cleveland 38. Bill DeCorrevont lost 2. Then Waterfield batted down Filchock's long pass aimed at Aguirre. From the 46, Big Joe tried again but his effort was short and Albie Reisz ran the ball back from the 7 to the Rams' 26. That was Washington's last chance. Statistics:

CHICAGO'S CHAMPION BOWLING DUO

The Wilmans, Joe and Henrietta, engage in a family match on the Berwyn recreation alleys. Joe, captain of the Monarchs in the Classic league, recently won the national individual match game championship. Mrs. Wilman also serves as captain of the Mario's restaurant quintet in the Bowling Lanes women's Major league. She has been the leading tenpin sharpshooter on the squad for 10 years.

MEET MR. AND MRS. BOWLING: THE WILMANS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT

Those who saw Joe Wilman power his way recently to the 1945 All-Star national individual match game bowling championship in the Auditorium service men's center might naturally think that Joseph is the only tenpin sharpshooter in his family.

That's because they don't know Mrs. Joe, christened Henrietta, but better known as Hank in local bowling sets. She is even more famed as the captain of the Mario's Restaurant quintet, which is currently leading the strong Bowling Lanes Ladies' Major league, and is running a close second in the All-Star doings which go on every Wednesday evening on the drives of the Cascade Bowling center.

A Star for Years

Hank Wilman for several years has proved herself as able a distaff scorer as her mate has been among men. She was a member of the Finucane team which captured the national title in Louisville some years ago. She has won the city doubles crown and has taken the doubles, singles, and all-events in the famed Samuelson's classic tournament. Furthermore, she has led this team for 10 years, including the eight it worked under the sponsorship of the Budweiser Beers, the same group which sponsored the five Husband Joe led to the last prewar A. B. C. team championship.

In the last two years, Hank and her mates have been sponsored by Mario Chiappe, the personable south loop restaurateur who is one of the most avid bowling fans in our city. They have won three state titles, finished second four times in the national event, and won seven out of 10 crowns in the Congress Classic league, probably the most talented organization in women's bowling in recent years.

Won 32 in a Row

Hank is aided and abetted on the Mario quintet by a foursome of colleagues whose brilliance is attested by the fact that they completed their schedule in the Bowling Lanes Major league last spring with an unfinished chain of 32 consecutive victories to move into second place.

There's Lee Garrity, who came down from Milwaukee where she was a member of the great Heil team. Lee has had a high game of 298, and only a few weeks back won the rich Whittier classic in Detroit with an all-time high of 1,198 for six games.

Another Lee on the Mario quintet is Lee Liepe, who specializes in doubles competition, as proven by her victories in the city, central states, and Herald-American twosome shooting. She has been a regular member of the fivesome since its inception.

City, State Champs

Completing the lineup of Hank's team are Irene Engel and Cecelia Winandy. The latter has held the city singles and doubles titles, won the state all-events honor for three successive years, and has had a high game of 297 and top series of 683. Irene has been state doubles champion and has led the Congress Classic league in averages.

PRIVATE FIRMS RACE WITH TVA TO SELL POWER

Federal Taxes Held Big Cost Inequity

BY ARTHUR EVANS
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 16—A close race between private enterprise in Georgia and Alabama and the nearby Tennessee Valley authority in promoting the use of electricity in homes has aroused interest both among business experts and in the TVA. The Georgia Power company, which supplies service in four-fifths of the state, was described by private industry as an illustration of competition with government in business, immune from taxes and debt interest.

This company, Georgia's largest taxpayer, pays federal taxes, interest on its bonds and dividends on stock. TVA is immune from federal taxes and from interest on money supplied by the federal treasury, which critics of TVA term "subsidies," paid by taxpayers all over the country.

Federal Taxes 17.5 Per Cent

In 1944, Georgia Power paid federal taxes of $8,598,978, or about 17.5 per cent of its gross revenue, somewhat more than the 15.8 per cent paid by the whole private electric industry in the United States. The company paid $2,685,501 in state and local taxes, or about 5.5 per cent of its gross intake. TVA and its distributors, the 92 municipalities and 46 coöperatives in the TVA domain, paid to state and local governments in lieu of taxes in the year ended June 30, 1944, a total of $4,200,000, or about 5.4 per cent of their combined gross power income of almost 78 million dollars.

Thus Georgia Power paid about 23.1 per cent of its gross income on federal and other taxes, as compared with TVA's 5.4 per cent for the equivalent of state and local taxes. These "in lieu" payments are prescribed in the TVA act. Georgia Power also paid about 13 per cent of its gross in 1944 for interest and other deductions and dividends on preferred stock. It had a balance of more than 2½ million dollars.

Average Sale Larger

Residential consumption of electricity mounted during the war, especially in some southern regions. Last year, Georgia Power sold an average of 1,779 kilowatt hours to home consumers, slightly more than the 1,754 kilowatt hours TVA sold to its average residential user in the year ended last June 30.

The Alabama Power company last year paid 13.8 per cent of its gross revenue in federal taxes and 9.5 per cent in local taxes. This company sold its average home consumer 1,708 kilowatt hours.

Both Georgia Power and Alabama were ordered by state public service commissions in 1944 to refund the December bill. The order was aimed at keeping some of the federal excess profits tax in the home states. Rates were reduced, and TVA said Georgia Power's average rate to residential consumers is now 2.27 cents a kilowatt hour, only about 4 mills higher than TVA's average residential rate of 1.85 cents.

Uses Steam Extensively

TVA's average residential bill was $32.45; Georgia Power's, $40.34; Alabama Power's, $38.06. In all the United States, the average home customer used only 1,186 kilowatt hours at a cost of $41.15.

Some economists studying why the Georgia company is able to run TVA so close a race, despite the agency's immunity from federal taxes and interest, theorize that one reason may be the modern steam generating plants built by the company. It has 22 hydro-electric plants, but less than half its kilowatts come from hydro, against 83 per cent for TVA.

S. S. WHITE DENTAL

How do S. S. White Dental Manufacturing company's war time sales and earnings compare with the pre-war record?—B. U.

Sales increased from a pre-war level of less than 9 million dollars to $16,909,000 last year. Besides varied equipment, instruments, and appliances for dentists, the company manufactures secondary lines including flexible shafting and castings used in aircraft, automobiles, portable tools, and other products and molded plastics.

Altho its 1944 sales to the government decreased about 55 per cent, total volume increased slightly because of gains in both civilian domestic sales and exports. Income taxes absorbed a large part of the war time increase in operating earnings, but part of it was saved for net income. Excess profits tax last year took $1,170,000. Earnings per share on approximately 298,618 shares, sole capitalization, were: 1944, $2.52; 1943, $1.89; 1942, $1.91; 1941, $2.06; 1940, $1.16; 1939, 87 cents. A net loss was shown for 1938, and a profit of $1.30 for 1937. In the first nine months of 1945 the profit was $1.62 a share.

The business was established in 1844 and dividends have been paid each year since 1899. Subsequent to 1941 the rate has been $1.20 yearly. Net working capital last Sept. 30 was $6,957,000.

Coal, Worker Lack Delaying French Output

BY DAVID DARRAH
[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

PARIS, Dec. 16—France's recovery program 15 months after liberation from German occupation has been delayed thru lack of coal, transportation, and man power. Furthermore, French industry, except for a few plants with priority, is on a three day working schedule.

Inability to cope with the illegal markets, the huge deficit in state finances, red tape, overburdened government pay rolls, and the peace time tendency to demand bigger consumption and a higher level of living, also disrupt the domestic economy. The French are entering their second peace time winter highly uncomfortable and irritated against the outside world.

General Recovery Good

Altho recovery is slow, statistics in some activities show improvement. It is a country of natural wealth and is believed to have better chances for recuperation than does England.

If winter handicaps are not too severe and coal stocks can be obtained French long term planners expect to be "out of the woods" by the middle of next summer with manufactured products and especially de luxe goods again sizable on the export market.

The big problem is coal, authorities emphasize. Coal production for the week ended Dec. 1 was reported at 900,000 tons, or equal to the 1918 output. French industry needs 3½ million tons monthly.

Steel production in September was 30 per cent of the pre-war figure, with 40 of 200 blast furnaces working and 80,000 steel workers employed, against 148,000 before the war.

Auto Plants Active

In the last three months French auto factories have turned out 12,000 cars. Next year the program calls for 15,000 cars and 65,000 trucks for the home market, and 27,000 cars and 8,000 trucks for export.

Exports are at a low level but increasing. Until the franc is stabilized at a figure representing its real value French exporters cannot sell in America and England. But exporters of wines and cognac are making plans for big business next year when the devaluation has been effected.

NEW PLANT OUTLAYS IN '45 AT 5.6 BILLION SET PEAK SINCE 1942

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 16 (AP)—American industry will have spent approximately 5 billion 690 million dollars for new plants and equipment during 1945, more than in any year since 1942, the securities and exchange commission and department of commerce said today in a survey of expenditures by private concerns. Industry will spend another 600 millions on old or used plants and equipment, the report said.

New plant expenditures totaled 8.3 billions in 1941 and 5.2 billions in 1939. Adjusting for differences in price level, the survey shows that the expenditures will be less than two-thirds of 1941. Data for 1942-'44 were not presented because figures are being revised.

HARVESTER AID, BACK IN REICH, SURVEYS PLANTS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service]

BERLIN, Germany, Dec. 16—"I saw photographs and newsreels and read newspaper dispatches about the destruction of German cities by bombing, but nobody could visualize the demolition of Frankfurt, Munich, and Berlin without seeing it with his own eyes," said Fred W. Tautfest, Glencoe, Ill., an International Harvester company executive who arrived here yesterday.

He said he had found the company's Munich branch in pretty good condition.

"Only a portion of the upper floors was bombed and there was no fire," he went on. "Even the office fixtures were intact and nothing had been stolen by the Nazis. Our factory in Neuss, near Munchen Gladbach, was severely damaged, according to reports from the British, in whose zone it is located.

"Our general office here in Berlin was unscathed, altho it is only a few hundred yards from Tempelhof air field and everything around it is rubble."

SWIFT'S PROFIT DIPS 3 MILLION IN FISCAL YEAR

Holmes Optimistic on Outlook

Swift & Co. net income in its 60th fiscal year ended Oct. 27 decreased more than 3 million dollars from the preceding year with sales 17 per cent below the record 1944 total, John Holmes, president, said in his annual report yesterday. He expressed confidence in the company's future.

Net earnings in the last year were $12,303,807, or $2.08 a share, compared with $15,662,635, or $2.64 a share. Sales totaled $1,307,631,681, exceeding the billion dollar mark for the fifth consecutive year. Total tonnage was 17 per cent below the preceding fiscal level.

Aided by Diversification

Profits averaged approximately 0.9 cent per dollar of sales, against 1 cent in 1944. Seventy-five cents of the sales dollar went to producers of agricultural products and suppliers of raw materials. Employes received 12.3 cents.

"The company's earnings, modest as they are, were made possible only because of the diversification which has been the company's long time policy," said Holmes.

"Looking toward the future, our confidence is sustained by the fact that the company continues in a strong financial position. Current assets are 4.94 times current liabilities. Our long term debt is being reduced consistently. The company is in a liquid position with resources adequate to meet its needs when normal conditions return."

Urges Change in Taxation

Holmes urged that the cost of government be reduced to the most efficient minimum and that the tax program be designed to encourage rather than restrict production. Thus industry will be able to meet current demands for civilian goods and increase the national income.

He said free market prices are by far the most efficient way of accomplishing the marketing functions essential to the country's feeding.

W-G-N CAROLING ON MICHIGAN AV. TO START TODAY

Daily Serenades to Flood Tribune Square Area

BY LARRY WOLTERS

A traditional Christmas season program will begin tonight in Tribune Square, with carols and other yuletide music to be played each night against the setting of a tall tree sparkling with 700 lights.

The carols will start and the tree will be lighted at 5 p. m. in Nathan Hale ct. on Michigan av., between Tribune Tower and the W-G-N studio. Loudspeakers have been placed high above the boulevard on the tower and the studio to broadcast carols to passers-by.

Musical programs, which will not be heard over W-G-N, will be played from 5 to 6 p. m. each night this week thru Friday and from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m. Saturday and Monday, Dec. 24. Matinees will be from noon to 12:30 p. m. daily thru Friday and from noon to 1 p. m. Saturday and next Monday.

Illuminated stars eight feet tall have been placed in each of the four corners at the top of Tribune Tower, which will be lighted with floodlights each night thru Christmas.

The tree in Nathan Hale ct., a balsam from northern Wisconsin, is 37 feet tall.

Henry Weber has arranged a program of lighthearted holiday music for the broadcast of the Chicago Philharmonic orchestra over W-G-N from 8:30 to 9:30 p. m. tomorrow. A highlight of the program will be Serge Prokofieff's humorous "Peter and the Wolf," with John Barclay as narrator.

A Christmas Festival program featuring Lily Pons and Lawrence Tibbett, Metropolitan Opera stars, in traditional songs is set for 8 to 8:30 tonight over WENR-ABC. George Hicks will describe the ceremony of the lighting of Christmas trees along Park av., New York.

Christmas eve is the deadline for entering that contest in which you have an opportunity to malign Jack Benny. The comedian is offering $10,000 in Victory bonds for the best completions of the sentence: "I can't stand Jack Benny because—." Some 75,000 letters already have been received.

The Radio Hall of Fame show plans a stopover in Chicago en route from New York to Hollywood on Sunday, Jan. 6. The show featuring Paul Whiteman's band, Songstress Martha Tilton, and others will be broadcast from local ABC studios on that date.

TRIBUTE IS PAID 250 COUPLES AS FOSTER PARENTS

Child Bureau Holds Annual Reception

Two hundred-fifty pairs of foster parents were honored yesterday by the Jewish Children's Bureau of Chicago at its annual reception in the Hamilton hotel. The bureau's foster home campaign will be continued thru January in an endeavor to find homes for 150 of the city's Jewish children.

Three couples particularly were cited for their work as foster parents. They are Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Mandel, 2116 Concord pl.; their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Minkus, 4908 N. Troy st., and their granddaughter and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Bland, 4831 N. Avers av.

Mr. and Mrs. Mandel, parents of 10 children, first applied to the bureau for a foster child in 1927. Since that time they have cared for three children, one of whom still is with them.

Daughter Follows Example

Eight years later their daughter, Mrs. Minkus, and her husband, decided to follow suit. Since then they have helped to rear six children, along with four of their own.

In 1944, Mrs. Bland, the mother of two children, applied to the bureau for foster children. Altho her husband has been in service, Mrs. Bland has managed to care for two foster children in addition to her own youngsters.

Mrs. Aneta Diamond, 1429 E. 65th pl., and Mrs. Marion Yale, 4454 W. Van Buren st., were awarded Victory bonds for obtaining the greatest number of foster children applications.

Case Workers Cited

Mrs. Libby Wolf, 6528 Blackstone av., and Miss Louise H. Greenberg, 1401 Hyde Park blvd., case workers of the league, were cited for their part in getting foster homes for children.

Jacob Kepecs is executive director of the league, and Mrs. Emily Schaar is chairman of the foster home committee of the board of directors of the league.

In addition to foster parents, guests at the reception included members of the foster home committee of the women's division of the Jewish Charities of Chicago, foster home chairmen of B'nai B'rith, and chairman of the auxiliaries.

CHICAGO STORY, FROM AUTOS TO ATOM, RELATED

Man's progress in agriculture, transportation, fuels, and metals as displayed at the Museum of Science and Industry was related to a radio audience last night in the weekly W-G-N program, "The Chicago Story," broadcast at 9 o'clock from the halls of the museum.

Sponsored as a weekly half-hour program to acquaint Chicagoans with educational, recreational, industrial, and artistic highlights of the city, this week's dramatization took radio listeners on a tour of the museum. Exhibits ranging from the development of the automobile to the discovery of the atomic bomb were visited and explained.

Special Tour for Children

The importance of simple explanations of scientific and industrial development was stressed as the group viewed working coal mines, the exhibit of 92 chemical elements, and the displays of steam engines. Approximately 250,000 school children are expected to visit the museum during the 1945-'46 school year on educational tours. Children this month are being taken on a special tour of the graphic arts section, where a rotary press from THE TRIBUNE is part of the display to explain the making of a newspaper to school groups.

The story of American railroading was described as the tour visited the 3,000 square foot miniature museum and Sante Fe electric railroad which operates four separate trains, including a perfect miniature of the 3,600 horse power diesel Super Chief.

Director Tells Objective

Maj. Lennox R. Lohr, director of the museum, explained that his institution primarily was interested in presenting the progress of industry and science so that all Americans may easily understand the achievements for their way of living.

Music for the performance was directed by Robert Trendler and the story was produced by Jack La Frandre. The ninth weekly half hour show next Sunday will dramatize "The Loop."

2 WARD CHIEFS TO BE INDUCTED BY DEMOCRATS

Two new ward committeemen will be officially recognized when the Democratic county committee meets Wednesday in its Morrison hotel headquarters to start selection of candidates for the 1946 primary, party leaders said yesterday. The meeting had been set originally for this afternoon.

In the 35th ward Ald. Orlikoski will take over the ward committeemanship to which the late John A. Szumnarski was elected in 1944. A resolution also has been prepared to recognize John F. O'Toole, Superior court master in chancery, as 15th ward committeeman, where the incumbent, Richard Frohlich has been ill.

At the Wednesday meeting, Mayor Kelly, in his capacity as county chairman, will appoint a committee to take charge of entering candidates for county, congressional, legislative, and court offices in the April primary.

WORKERS URGED TO ASK BENEFITS ON REACHING 65

A worker's old age insurance benefits may be larger if he applies for them soon after reaching the age of 65 even tho he plans to continue to work, Robert W. Beasley, regional social security board director, said yesterday. The benefit payments may be reduced, he said, by decreases in earnings caused by reduced pay, loss of overtime, unemployment, or illness. Beasley said men and women more than 65 years old who have worked in jobs under social security should inquire about their benefit rights at a social security field office.

VAST RAILROAD IMPROVEMENTS FORECAST SOON

Innovations and improvements undreamed of a few years ago will be installed by the railroads as a result of recent research, James M. Symes, Chicago, vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad in charge of western operations, said yesterday. He predicted the roads will have to spend nearly 1 billion dollars annually to put them in shape to meet peace time competition.

"Our post-war program is planned to provide a modern passenger service, designed to accommodate mass travel at high speed, safely and luxuriously, at low cost," Symes said. "By high speed I do not mean air speeds, but something like 80 to 90 miles per hour. The railroads have a potential travel market that requires only 'tapping,' and every progressive road has its plans pretty well set to go out and get passenger business at a profit.

Fast Frate Service Planned

"Also a complete frate service is designed to accommodate mass tonnage at high speed, safely, with dependability, and at low cost. Here again we are not talking about air speeds. We are talking about overnight service between centers about 400 miles apart, with corresponding service for longer distances."

Symes said heavy expenditures over the next five years will be made for the following:

Heavier and better rail and improved roadbed.

Improved signaling devices.

Better communication systems, including radio.

Reduction of grades and elimination of curves to increase speed and produce economies in operation.

New locomotives, steam, electric, and diesel, depending upon which type produces the best service consistent with economy.

New frate cars, lighter in weight, but stronger.

New passenger cars for equipping complete new trains.

Passenger Facilities Improved

"There will be varying types of passenger trains, including all-coach trains," Symes said. "The night trains will have comfortable reclining seats, plenty of room to spread out, with adequate dining and lounging facilities. There will be fast all-coach day trains between the larger cities. Pullman accommodations will be diversified to meet the varying public demands. The old open upper and lower berth car will be a thing of the past and all new sleepers will be of the room type, with private toilet facilities."

Symes said if these things are accomplished and a fair national transportation is established the future of the railroad industry will be assured. The country needs and must have the economy of mass transportation which only the railroads can provide, he said. He expressed belief that public opinion will pave the way for coöperation between labor and management to carry the miracle of war production into peace time production.

PARIS, Dec. 16 (AP)—Nearly 5,000 Paris area youngsters, whose fathers were killed during the war, were guests of the United States army and the American Red Cross at a Christmas party today. Each child received a toy from his GI hosts. Approximately 10,000 more toys, shipped from the United States by the Red Cross, will be distributed at later parties.

Public Administrator John T. Dempsey was host. Others present included Judge John F. O'Connell of Probate court; Werner Schroeder, Republican national committeeman; Ald. Gillespie [29th], Don Peebles, general attorney for the public administrator; Jack Rubens, chief investigator, who was toastmaster, and the assistant judges of the Probate court.

Ulrich, who is 65, and resides with his wife at 7734 Palatine av., is retiring voluntarily and plans to move to Miami, Fla.

SEES ADVANCES FOR MEDICINE IN ATOM STUDY

Prof. James Franck, German-born chemist and Nobel prize winner at the University of Chicago, said in a broadcast yesterday that research in the sources of atomic energy in time might lead to new treatments for cancer and other diseases. He warned, however, that military security might stifle the opening of an unprecedented era in chemistry and biology.

"We can confidently expect from the development of nuclear energy an enormously increased supply of radiation for the treatment of disease and a prolific source of radioactive isotopes for use both in medical therapy and in biochemistry research," said Dr. Franck, who resigned from the University of Goettingen at the start of the Hitler regime.

The scientist participated in the study of plutonium for atomic bombs at the university's metallurgical laboratory. Dr. Franck warned that he was not predicting an early cure for cancer, but said much research can be done with radioactive isotopes, byproducts of atomic power plants.

Manufacturers to Hear Adm. De Witt Ramsey

Vice Adm. DeWitt C. Ramsey, former commander of the aircraft carrier Saratoga, will speak at a luncheon of the air services placement center at noon Wednesday in the Chicago club, 404 S. Michigan av. Industrialists and manufacturers of the Chicago area will attend. Adm. Ramsey commanded the Saratoga in the Solomon Islands, Guadalcanal, and Tulagi campaigns from May 12, 1942, to Oct. 27, 1942. From November, 1942, to August, 1943, he commanded a task force with the Saratoga as his flagship.

CIVILIAN PHONE PRODUCTION TO START TODAY

Production of telephones for civilian use will be started today by the Western Electric company in the former Studebaker aviation engine war plant at Archer av. and 55th st., which Western Electric leased Dec. 1.

The factory will produce 2,000 new telephones today, and by midsummer it is scheduled to reach a manufacturing capacity of 8,000 instruments a day for the Illinois Bell Telephone system. More than 5,000 workers will be employed in the Archer av. plant, bringing Western Electric's total Chicago pay roll to 30,000 persons, or 6,000 more than the war production peak figure of 24,000.

90,000 on Waiting List

A Bell company spokesman said yesterday that the telephone instrument shortage will be cleared up soon after Jan. 1, 1946, altho a shortage of cable and dial and manual type central switchboard equipment will continue to keep many persons from getting residential telephone service. The company has a waiting list of 90,000 persons in Chicago and downstate Illinois.

Phone service will be extended to most persons on the waiting list during 1946, a company spokesman predicted. The extension of new services is a slow task, he said, because of the great amount of hand work involved in both the manufacture and in the installation of central control equipment.

Equipment Is Moved

Instrument manufacturing lines will be transferred to the Western Electric plant in Archer av. from the Hawthorne works, where floor space will be cleared for equipment to manufacture telephone exchange equipment. The last instruments to be made at the Hawthorne works were taken off the conveyor lines at 11 p. m. Saturday.

Thru expanded facilities at Hawthorne, the Western Electric company hopes to produce more than one and a quarter million lines of exchange equipment in 1945 and more than one and a half million lines in 1947. The national shortage of exchange lines is estimated at two million. To a layman, a line is a hole in a switchboard.

Western Electric also is planning a corresponding stepup in production of cables and other outside telephone equipment.

CHICAGO YANK DIES AS PLANE CRASHES IN ALPS

Army sources reported yesterday that Sgt. Charles Nelson, 29, of 12 Cedar st., was killed recently when an army plane crashed against a mountain in the Italian Alps. Before entering the army Nelson was a painter employed by the Park district. He had been overseas more than two years. Thirteen other persons, including three Red Cross women, were killed in the crash.

Sgt. Francis D. Reuse, 28, reported missing in Germany Dec. 11, 1944, is presumed to have been killed in action, his widow, Fern, 6076 N. Albany av., has been informed. He also is survived by a daughter, Frances. A memorial service will be held Thursday at 8 p. m. in St. Paul's Church by the Lake.
